MEXICO REFUSES

Washington, June 27.—Mexican Ambassador Arredondo was officially advised today that the demands of United States for release of the American soldiers, captured by the Mexicans at Carrizal, will be refused.

WASHINGTON, June 27.---That war between the United States and Mexico is certain and cannot be deferred much longer than 48 hours---if that long---seemed clear at the Capitol this afternoon. It is evident that Carranza will not yield. A war resolution has actually been drawn up by House leaders and it is expected that President Wilson will lay the case finally before Congress tomorrow or Thursday.

LAY BARE ORPET'S LOVE

Waukegan, Ill., June 27.—Will Orpet sat on the witness stand today like a charmed bird in the thrall by smooth dark curls and shining beadlike eyes. His head was cocked just a little to one side and a dreamy film overspread his eyes. His expression was a blurred combination of shyness, embarrassment and regret.

And from time to time it lighted ever so faintly with a bashful, sad smile. Attorney David R. Joslyn, the McHenry County orator, was cross-questioning him with a sweetly menacing way that was slowly lulling his victim into a sense of well being. And yet behind this wild and sugary screen or words danger lurked. The cross-examination of the youth had begun. His story of his love for and

4 INFANTRY UNITS ON THE WAY

Camp Whitney, Framingham, June 27.—The last of the Bay State infantry units to go in the first troop movement departed at 8 o'clock today for the border.

This was the Eighth Regiment, the Ninth having gone at 11:15 last night, and the Second and Fifth at 3:30 this morning.

In the four regiments are four thousand men speeding today to the front.

Other units—cavalry, field artillery, signal, hospital and ambulance corps—were expected to start today, which will bring the total to 5,000 Bay State troops on the way to El Paso.

The second battalion of field artillery, composed of Companies D, E, and F of Salem, still lacked horses, and it may be three or four days before the battalion can get away.

There are in the camp between

Today's News in Mexican Crisis

The chief new developments in the Mexican situation today were:

1—War with Mexico seems likely to come within forty-eight hours. Two facts point to this issue. One is that Bolivian Minister Calderon at Washington states he has information that Carranza will reject President Wilson's demands. The second is that President Wilson within forty-eight hours is expected to ask Congress to sanction a break with Mexico. Congressional leaders have drawn up a resolution declaring a state of war exists between the United States and Mexico.

2—Plans have been completed at Washington, it is stated, for a blockade of the Mexican coast in the event of war. Lighter craft will be dispatched for the purpose the minute the troops may move into Mexico.

3—Twelve thousand National Guardsmen are speeding toward the border today. Of these approximately 4,000 are in Bay State units. Other units entrain today at Framingham for the front.

CARRANZA IS DEFIANT

Mexico City, June 27.—High officials of the Mexican government stated today that Carranza had decided to reject President Wilson's demand that the American prisoners captured in the battle of Carrizal be released by the Chihuahua military authorities. "If the United States makes peace contingent upon the freeing of these prisoners," they asserted, "war is certain."

Drafting of the formal reply to the United States ultimatum was completed at the Foreign Office shortly after midnight.

From an authoritative source it was learned today that the reply informs the United States that the attitude of the de facto government toward that country has been clearly set forth in previous communications.

It is said that Carranza insists that the presence of the American troops on Mexican soil is contrary to the wishes of the Mexican people and government, and that he reiterates previous demands for their withdrawal and that he places the responsibility of hostilities, if they come, upon the American government.

"War seems to be inevitable," said a high official of the foreign office when asked what the outlook appeared to be. Foreign Minister Aguilar remained at his office until late in the night. He has arranged to take the field in case of war.

Mexico's position has been set forth in the note to the other Latin American governments. This said:

If the American government has ordered a mobilization of large numbers of additional troops along the northern frontier of Mexico with the apparent intention of provoking a conflict with this government, notwithstanding this government and our people do not desire the same.

Connecticut Troops Start for Border

Saybrook Junction, Ct., June 27.—The first section of the troop trains from Niantic with infantry, cavalry and other troops aboard passed through here at 9:20 a. m. Ex-Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley of Hartford and a big crowd were at the station to cheer the Connecticut troops. They got a great ovation.

Shortly afterward a train bearing the Massachusetts troops from the Framingham camp passed through, west-bound.

NAVAL MILITIA BILL RUSHED TO CONGRESS

Washington, June 27.—The administration bill "federalizing" the naval militia of the various States was unanimously reported to the House today by the committee on naval affairs. The bill would authorize President Wilson to draft immediately into the service of the United States the men of the naval militia. There are at present about 5,000 officers and men of the naval militia.

Don Ignacio Calderon, the Bolivian minister, who has led the Latin-American mediation movement, gave up hope of peace today and expressed his belief that the break is likely within forty-eight hours.

"I have authentic information that the Carranza reply is complete and is in no way responsive to the American demand," said the veteran diplomat today. "The mob spirit seems to be influencing Carranza and his advisers. While I have no details of the note, I am assured through Latin-American diplomatic sources that the reply, instead of being conciliatory, will declare that the United States is to blame and will adopt a position, which, I fear, will leave no alternative to the United States but to use force. We of the Latin-American diplomatic corps are gravely disappointed."

Late Mexico Bulletins

Columbus, N. M., June 27.—Four more survivors of the Carrizal massacre have been picked up and brought back to the American lines near General Pershing's headquarters at Casas Grandes, according to advices received here today. The men, all negro troopers, were in a pitiful condition, half dead from hunger and thirst.

San Antonio, Texas, June 27.—Only prompt action by Major-General Funston in ordering the Twenty-second United States infantry from Douglas to Naco is believed to have saved Bisbee, Ariz., from attack by 1,500 Mexicans last night. Scouts reported that the Carranzistas were entrained and ready for a dash upon Bisbee, but when the American troops were concentrated the Mexicans did not make any hostile move.

PERSHING HAS MOVED BASE TO DUBLAN

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Tex., June 27.—The Mexican town of Namiquipa, long the base of Brigadier-General John J. Pershing, has been evacuated by the United States troops. The Americans have also withdrawn from Cruces. General Pershing is now making his headquarters at Colonia Dublan, north of Namiquipa. News of the realignment of the United States troops was received from General Pershing by Major-General Funston today. General Funston says he is now ready for any eventuality. There are no American troops in the vicinity of Carrizal nor Villa Ahumada, the Carranzista base, General Pershing reported.

The New York sub-treasury gained $6,102,087 from banks yesterday, but had lost $8,050,00 since Friday last.

WAR SPIRIT ALL ALONG THE BORDER

El Paso, Tex., June 27.—War spirit is sweeping the border today. From the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean, Mexican and American troops are both alert for the signal to enter conflict.

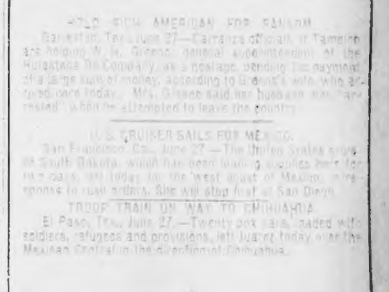

The actual situation is shown by an occurrence near Progreso, forty miles from Brownsville, last night. Two armed Mexicans who attempted to cross the Rio Grande were fired upon by an American border patrol.

One of the Mexicans was killed and another wounded. Along the Rio Grande, near San Benito, Mexican soldiers have concentrated for a sudden dash into American territory. On the Arizona border Carranzista forces are threatening the towns of Naco, Bisbee and Nogales. A special train is carrying American troops to the menaced Arizona front.

The Mexican troops along the thinly guarded Arizona line far outnumber the American soldiers.

CRUCIBLE STEEL GETS BIG WAR ORDER

New York, June 27.—Crucible Steel Company has received from United States government a $4,000,000 order for munitions of war.

within forty-eight hours action would be taken by the United States.

The impression prevailed in official circles that President Wilson would not wait beyond Thursday at the latest, and possibly not beyond tomorrow afternoon for a definite reply from the Carranza Government to the note demanding the immediate release of the prisoners and a declaration of intentions.

Foreign Secretary Aguilar said today at Mexico City:

"It looks as if the American Government, without justifiable and pretextual reasons for declaring war upon Mexico, wishes to make it inevitable by using incidents that are bringing us close to war.

"Mexico should win or succumb with dignity, but before she does she is willing to demonstrate to the other countries of the American Continent that the attitude followed by the United States is that of attempting to seek a pretext for intervention."

Minister Calderon said that he did not know when the Carranza reply would reach this city.

WAIT FOR REPLY.

The State Department likewise was in the dark. Its overnight messages from Consul-General James L. Rodgers at Mexico City said that the ultimatum demanding the release of the American troopers held prisoners at Chihuahua City was presented to the Mexican Foreign Office at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. No word had been received from Rodgers today, and it was said that after the reply actually is handed to him it will require from six to twelve hours for transmission to this city.

Officials were confident, however, that the new Carranza note will be in the hands of the President not later than tomorrow morning.

The President and the Cabinet went over the situation at great length at today's session. While no action will be taken until the Carranza reply is received, so certain is the President that it will be unfavorable that he has drafted an outline of his address to Congress which will be delivered at a joint session to be held at noon tomorrow should the Carranza reply be received by that time.

The present plan is to hold the joint session tomorrow. But it may be deferred until Thursday should Carranza's reply be delayed.

DENY MEXICAN CHARGES.

It is understood that Secretary of War Baker presented all of the latest reports from Generals Funston and Pershing, which show the details of the present troop dispositions and the plans for placing the National Guardsmen, as they arrive at the border.

In addition all of the reports from General Pershing dealing with the Carrizal battle were considered. They showed conclusively, it is understood, that the allegations of the Mexicans that the American troop commander was the aggressor are absolutely without foundation. These reports already have been published in the accounts from the border.

Secretary Lansing reported that practically all of the American refugees have succeeded in getting out of Mexico. In this connection Secretary of the Navy Daniels reported to the cabinet that the commanders of the warships now in the Tampico district have been warned by General Nafarette, the Carranzista commander in that section, that if any attempt is made by the United States to occupy the great oil fields there he (Nafarette) will destroy them.

Inasmuch as these oil fields are the richest in the world and are owned in great part by British capitalists, this threat is causing the United States uneasiness. Three-fourths of the oil used in the British and French navies comes from these wells and the British embassy here informally has asked assurances that any blockade established by the United States will not interfere with the export of oil from this field.

Secretary Daniels also reported to the cabinet his plans for the use of the naval militia of the country which numbers 8,000 officers and men. It is intended that these citizen soldiers shall have an opportunity for service on the blockading squadron which is to maintain a patrol off both coasts of Mexico to prevent any ammunition reaching Carranza.

Congress hastened completion of the legislation necessary to finish the preparedness of the army and navy. The leaders have made all arrangements for the joint session to hear the President and only await his suggestion of the day and hour desired.

The majority seem to desire a straight-out declaration of war, but it is confident that anything the President suggests will be carried out.

American Reporters Go to Front with the Troops

A corps of staff reporters of the Boston AMERICAN accompany the Massachusetts troops to the Mexican campaign. Bert Ford, Willard H. Davis, Harry Benwell and others will keep the readers of the Boston AMERICAN informed with up-to-the-minute, illustrated accounts of the doings of the Massachusetts troops. Other correspondents will accompany the troops from other New England States. If you have soldier relatives or friends you can keep posted on their doings by reading the Boston AMERICAN.

BERT FORD

Trained reporter, whose name is familiar to all New England from his work on big news stories, is with Brigadier-General Sweetser, the Brigade Staff and the Ninth Regiment, en route to El Paso. Mr. Ford's accurate and graphic reports will keep readers posted on movements of the Bay State Militia. Being in close touch with brigade headquarters, he will be informed as to the general situation in regard to the Bay State men.

HARRY BENWELL

A former member of the Coast Artillery Corps, he is familiar with military matters, particularly from the soldiers' end. Mr. Benwell started away with the Eighth Regiment. He is an accurate observer of events, which he describes in careful yet vivid manner. His daily accounts of the doings of the Eighth will be good reading for the general public and will interest particularly those who have friends or relatives in the Eighth.

WILLARD H. DAVIS

From the military training camp at Plattsburg, where he had been writing interesting reports of the preparedness work, Mr. Davis came down to Framingham camp and was sent away by the AMERICAN with the Fifth Regiment. Mr. Davis' graphic accounts of Plattsburg and Framingham attracted much attention, and his contributions from the Mexican front will be a strong addition to the AMERICAN'S supply of war news.

"Typhoid" at Camp Was Heat Prostration.

Framingham, June 27.—Report today on militia cases at Framingham Hospital showed that Private J. F. Lynch of C Company, Second Regiment, of Worcester, who was reported a few days ago as possibly stricken with typhoid fever, was a victim of heat prostration. Examination of his blood for typhoid signs returned a negative result. He is still in the hospital. Other reports today were:

Sergeant T. J. Madden of Boston, C Company, Ninth Infantry, pleurisy, discharged today and forwarded.

Corporal G. D. Trauttner of Clinton, K Company, Ninth Infantry, leg ruptured, operated upon today successfully.

Sergeant J. R. Monahan, Cambridge, A Company, Eighth Infantry, sunstroke and injured by fall on rifle; discharged and forwarded.

H. L. Mooney, Winthrop, gunner, machine gun company, Fifth Infantry, broken arm, at hospital.

Sergeant P. I. Sheridan, Worcester, Battery B, First Field Artillery, leg kicked and broken by horse, at hospital.

C. H. Maxner, Salem, gunner, Battery F, First Field Artillery, blood poisoning from insect bite, at hospital.

J. P. Grinsley, Lynn, cook, Battery F, First Field Artillery, back strained; discharged and forwarded.

E. P. Nichols, Everett, messenger, Company A, Signal Corps, chest strained; discharged and forwarded.

Joseph Bennsivient, Springfield, private, B Company, Second Infantry, appendicitis; may be operated upon tomorrow.

O. L. Lamirand, Holyoke, private, D company, Second Infantry, appendicitis; still at hospital.

McGinness Wanted by McCall for Ninth

A request that Captain John R. McGinness, U. S. A., be ordered to serve with the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M., throughout the Mexican crisis, was sent to the War Department today by Governor McCall.

Captain McGinness, who has been acting as adjutant to Colonel Edward L. Logan of the "Fighting Ninth," was recalled for service by the regular army. Colonel Logan immediately requested that this order be revoked and the Governor is using his influence to retain Captain McGinness.

In his letter to the War Department, Governor McCall describes the "Fighting Ninth" as "a remarkably well disciplined militia regiment composed of splendid men."

6 MISSING AS 1,276 FLEE FROM MEXICO

Vera Cruz, June 27.—Six Americans are missing from the Tuxpam district, according to advices from Tampico received from W. W. Canada, the American Consul. Who they are or what has happened to them was not made known in the dispatches received here.

More than 1,000 Americans are now on board oil tankers lying in the river at Tampico and 276 are yet to be embarked. Of those on the oil ships none has been injured or molested.

The United States cruiser Chester is lying off Tampico, and the gunboats Machias and Marietta are in the river.

Embarkation of refugees at Vera Cruz is continuing today. Boatloads are being taken to the battleship Nebraska every two hours. There have been no disorders of any kind here. A Ward Line steamer left today heavily loaded with Americans. They will be disembarked at Galveston.

TROOPS OF BAY STATE FIRST TO LEAVE

2,000 and 3,000 "rookies," being trained by coast artillery, regular army and First Corps Cadets' officers.

Adjutant-General Cole remained at the camp all night, without a chance to sleep until the Eighth had gone this morning.

For the Eighth there were repeated the scenes of parting of yesterday.

Food was scarce hereabouts after the infantry had departed. The troops took away most of the tents, all of the rations, and the kitchen utensils and even the cook stoves. The result was that the recruits suffered from hunger, and scores of the "rookies" walked out of camp and made for home.

Those who remained missed their meals. Nothing could be secured in town, all the restaurants having been cleaned out of food.

When Adjutant-General Cole was notified, he ordered coffee and sandwiches, which were brought to the recruits.

No tents were allowed to be delivered while the troops were leaving, so the recruits faced a night on the bare ground. However, Captain Tandy, superintendent of the arsenal, decided to issue tentage, but the "rookies" did not know how to erect the canvas.

FIRST LESSON IN DARK.

At this Colonels Sweetser and Fullerton, who are here with a staff of officers to instruct the recruits, gave their first instructions to the "rookies" on tent-raising in the darkness. By dawn the tents were up. The men turned in, but hardly any had blankets, and stiff joints were the rule today.

The delay of the infantry in starting was attributed to three things: The lack of suitable and sufficient wagon horses, the comparative inexperience of the men in quick mobilization and a serious error, they claimed, in the orders from Washington.

The men broke camp late in the day and marched behind their bands through cheering crowds. The day was very hot. In the freight yards the heat was stifling. The only supper the men had consisted of sandwiches, chocolate and coffee, a fare shared alike by the headquarters staff and privates.

NOTES OF THE MILITIA

President Wells today informed Governor McCall that a majority of the members of the State Senate have already volunteered to serve without salary if a special session of the Legislature is necessary. Governor McCall said that as yet "no pressing need" for a special session has become evident.

Every appeal for relief that is being received from the families of Bay State troopers who have gone to the Mexican frontier is being referred by the adjutant general's department to the Commonwealth Armory, where a headquarters for relief has been established by the Woman's Anti-Suffrage League under Mrs. John Balch.

Chief Clerk "Billy" Flowers of the adjutant general's office estimates that an average of thirty appeals for relief a day are being received. Since the departure of the troops, the number of appeals from wives and mothers anxious to have their husbands and sons discharged from duty has diminished.

Tears coursed down the cheeks of Flowers today as he sat at a telephone listening to the appeal of the mother of three young children who asked that the husband be relieved from duty. She told him that she was willing that her husband should render his full duty to his country, but she added, with a plea that moved Flowers to tears, "O, can't you do something to have him sent back home to his children?"

Now that the Bay State boys are Federal troopers, the question confronts the adjutant general's office, "How can the discharge of any of the Bay State men be secured?" It is the unofficial opinion of the adjutant general's department that all power in this matter has passed to the War Department.

Colonel Warren E. Sweetser of the Sixth Infantry succeeds General E. Leroy Sweetser in command of Camp Whitney. Colonel Sweetser has detailed men from the Sixth to drill the "rookies." Officers have also been assigned from the Coast Artillery Corps and the First Corps Cadets. About 2,500 recruits are at Camp Whitney to be drilled preparatory to embarking for Mexico. Their equipment will soon be ready for distribution to them.

Governor McCall feels that the troopers, as well as the officers, should have been provided with sleeping or tourist cars. "The trouble was," said the Governor, "that we didn't get notice in time from the Federal government to prepare for this. They were a fine looking body of men," he said, "and many a private who left today and yesterday for Mexico was able to have borne a general's commission with ability and valor."

The Governor feels also that extra blankets should be provided for the men. His knowledge of the South informs him of the cool nights and the consequent danger of illness.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN OF MANY STATES ON WAY TO BORDER

The National Guard in most of the Eastern States is either on the move toward the border today or ready to entrain. Dispatches today to the AMERICAN showed the following:

Rhode Island—Four Rhode Island cavalry troops were in camp ready for service. Captain T. A. Roberts, U. S. A., at Quonset Point, was directed by the War Department to use all possible haste in obtaining horses for the cavalry commands.

Maine—Adjutant-General Presson yesterday ordered all National Guard recruits at home station to proceed immediately to Augusta. The Second Regiment of Infantry will entrain at the mobilization camp here the latter part of the week.

Kentucky—A Lexington Signal Corps company and Company K of the Second Regiment at Ashland received orders to mobilize at Fort Thomas to prepare camp for the entire Kentucky brigade.

Arkansas—The two regiments of the Arkansas National Guard will be ready to start for the border Wednesday night. Twelve of the twenty-four companies are now awaiting orders at Fort Logan A. Roots.

Maryland—Adjutant-General Warfield yesterday informed the War Department that the entire Maryland National Guard was mobilizing and one regiment of infantry would be ready to entrain in forty-eight hours.

California—Seven companies of the United States Coast Artillery entrained yesterday for border duty in Southern California, five companies going to Calexico and two to San Diego. Two companies of the California State militia went into camp at Sacramento yesterday.

Pennsylvania—Acting upon War Department orders, Adjutant-General Stewart today ordered the First Brigade to be ready to leave the mobilization camp at Mount Gretna tomorrow night. The brigade will be accompanied by one battalion of engineers, a field signal corps and a hospital corps.

Oregon—All of Oregon's militiamen are awaiting orders at Camp Withycombe.

Washington—The mobilization of the Washington militia was completed with the arrival of the last two companies at American Lake yesterday.

Michigan—Five thousand members of the Michigan National Guard, who have been mustered into the regular army, drilled today at Camp Ferris under regular army officers. Several companies will be ready to entrain within forty-eight hours.

Missouri—Missouri National Guard troops entrained last night for "somewhere in Texas," their destination not being disclosed.

PERSHING READY TO STRIKE

By H. H. STANSBURY.

El Paso, June 27.—General Pershing's forces were reported to be within striking distance of General Trevino's army at Villa Ahumada. The Mexicans threw up earthworks in anticipation of an attack.

The American column was said to have halted, awaiting such orders as may follow the reply of First Chief Carranza to President Wilson's last ultimatum. A steady movement of Mexican troop trains from Chihuahua City to Villa Ahumada brought reinforcements, numbering approximately 4,000 men, for the Carranza army.

A rumor that fighting had started between the two forces sent a thrill along the border, but the information was discovered to be unfounded. Tension between Juarez and El Paso is still at the breaking point. The Mexican town has not been evacuated by General Gonzales as reported. Consul Andreas Garcia is in command of the civilian army supporting General Francisco Gonzales.

Garcia informed the International News Service that the big buildings, of which there are several in El Paso which tower above the main skyline, will be the first target for Mexican artillery in case of battle.

The last of the Americans in the Parral district have started for the border. They are employes of the Alvarado Mining and Milling Company. The party is in charge of T. G. Hawkins, an official of the company.

Active preparations are under way here and at Columbus to receive big allotments of militia. Camp sites have been chosen at both places and a large force is at work sinking wells

On Board Bay State Brigade Special.

Albany, N. Y., June 27.—Brigadier-General E. Leroy Sweetser and his staff and Colonel Edward L. Logan and staff were left stalled on the track while they slept in their coaches and the locomotive and cars ahead, crowded with privates of the Ninth, continued to bump and thump merrily on their way to Mexico.

A coupling snapped and left the brigade and regimental headquarters behind. The mishap occurred at ' this morning on the outskirts of Niverville, N. Y. It was due to the strain of the heavily-laden troop coaches.

The train crew discovered the predicament of the commander of the Bay State troops before the runaway section had gone very far and it was backed up and in half an hour the journey to El Paso was resumed.

PASS HEADQUARTERS.

Meanwhile the second and third sections, carrying the second and third battalions of the Ninth passed the brigade headquarters' section and took the lead. We overtook them at Albany. The maximum speed during the first night out never bettered twenty-five miles an hour.

Crowds cheered the Massachusetts contingent today. At Worcester and Springfield last night the station platforms were thronged and yet this section did not pass through Springfield until 1:45 a. m.

At a way station between Worcester and Springfield a gathering could be heard and soon, thanks to a sputtering red fire, G. A. R. and Spanish War uniforms were distinguishable, but there was no telling what the station was that boasted of this little band of patriots.

Our section stopped in the Springfield yards for a shift of engines, but not at the station.

LABEL THE COACHES.

Before entraining at Framingham, and bright and early this morning at the first stops, the boys of the various companies of the Ninth labelled their company coaches with all sorts of inscriptions in white chalk, and the lettering was clean, even artistic. The first troops out of the Bay State wished to proclaim to the inhabitants of the communities passed their name and mission.

C Company coach read:

"The Fighting Ninth" and "Watch the Greasers run."

Another inscription read:

"Massachusetts is always ready."

And M Company, Lowell:

"Watch us go through Mexico."

These chalk signs amused the station crowds. Women and children ran through fields waving arms and flags.

The getaway was sad and tardy. Colonel Edward L. Logan's command, the first infantry regiment to march off the camp grounds amid the thunder of applause at 5:20 yesterday, did not leave Framingham until 11:10 last night.

After the Ninth Regiment pulled out of Framingham Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole called the attention of the correspondents to the fact that Colonel Logan's command would be right on the border at El Paso and that every man was carrying double the allotment of ammunition.

Whistles and cheers were heard as the train passed through towns and cities.

The departure of the three troop train sections which carried Brigadier-General E. Leroy Sweetser, commander of the Bay State forces, and Colonel Logan and his regiment, was so late that the thousands of relatives and friends who had swarmed the tracks to bid the citizen soldiers Godspeed had entirely melted in the darkness, and militiamen had curled in slumber in the day coaches before the last wagons of equipment were loaded and the locomotive on our section snorted and got under way.

It was a memorable sendoff. The boys talked about it until they fell asleep, fagged after a strenuous day.

Because the ones left behind may not have detected eye moisture on the part of the soldiers, is not saying that they did not have their share of the grief. If you elbowed your way through the crowded coaches you could see the serious expressions, the heaving chests and those tell-tale dry swallows. The joshing and singing of the companies was a brave way to conceal their emotions and a charitable way to cheer loved ones they were so soon to part from.

But soldiers, and especially citizen soldiers, have feelings. However, we are probably peeping too far behind the scenes. Lieutenant-Colonel John H. Dunn had been wigwagging through the Pullman window to his wife and other relatives who stood on the grassy knoll back of where the crowd was thickest. His chauffeur came in.

"Take them home, Doc," said the chairman of Boston's Street Commission. "I'll feel better, and besides, we won't pull out for hours with all that army truck piling aboard.

IN FOR THIRD ROUND.

"Strange about women's feelings. My wife did not seem to fear this trip. She did my other two campaigns at Santiago and the Philippines. In fact, I said 'Never again' the last time, and here I am roped in for a third round and this time with greasers.

"My nephew, Raymond Dunn, urged me to take him with me as a mascot and really meant it, and he's only eight. The folks have gone. The man at the throttle can clamp it over any time now and head for the Rio Grande."

Through the screens in the open windows came the solo and chorus singing of M Company of Lowell. Captain Daniel Christie's crew deserve credit for scattering the glooms. The men of M Company are talented, and they won the crowd with recitations, songs and quartet singing.

The impromptu program as they stood on the tracks beside the empty coaches before the order to board was given, dried tears and brought laughter and applause.

NOT AN ARREST MADE.

Michael Kearns recited "Erin, My Erin," Charlie McDermott recited "The Dandy Fifth," John Slattery sang "Rosie O'Grady," and then soldiers and sightseers bellowed that new and popular patriotic song, "America, I Love You."

The Massachusetts troops had been at the Framingham concentration camp six days. The mobilization took place on Wednesday last, less than three days after the President's call to arms.

Chief of Police W. H. Holbrook of Framingham, who came down to see the Ninth off, was given three cheers and a tiger. "There never was a finer camp held in the town," he said. "Fine bunch of boys. Never saw better behavior and discipline. What do you think of 7,500 men in camp a week and not a man arrested and not a single accident reported. Some record and with 150,000 in town Sunday and 3,500 automobiles. Sorry to see them go."

The last day in camp was one of tense excitement and emotion. While squads of rookies were being rushed to the Wakefield range for their "baptism of fire," the outgoing units were breaking camp. And some of those rookies, by the way, astonished the officers in charge of target practice. One rookie scored four fours in his first five shots with a service rifle.

As to the camp breaking, listen to Sullivan McBride's description. McBride hailed from Milford. He said, "I went out to enlist but they turned me down. You could have knocked me over with a feather when in passing through a company street of the Ninth I came across my brother John of No. 3502 Washington street, Jamaica Plain. He was in uniform and I hadn't laid eyes on him for six years. I have a brother Frank with the regular army in Mexico and I'd be going too only for my near sightedness."

CAMP LOST GAIETY.

It was a tough day. Mothers and wives and sisters fainted. Everybody's eyes were red.

There was none of the gaiety of the earlier camp days. Everybody looked glum. Colonel Edward L. Logan's tent was swarmed with guests and two suitcases were brimming over with gifts and there was one whole suitcase filled with "smokes."

All afternoon Concord avenue was lined. Women and children squatted on the sidewalk. A half-holiday was declared. Flags flapped everywhere. Buildings were decorated.

Every army wagon that rumbled past creaking under weight of equipment was cheered and so were the detail squads. When Colonel Logan appeared at the head of his regiment, there was the applause that comes from the heart. The sightseers were so eager to see the departing soldiers that they broke the lines and shook hands and kissed men in the ranks.

Women with children in their arms hurried to keep up with the procession. Men, women and children followed the regiment three miles to the siding at the northwest end of the town. The crowd that trailed along swallowed up the regiment. All were half-hidden by clouds of dust. It was stiflingly hot. "Don't you care," said a corporal, "we'll have to eat a lot of this stuff before we get home."

"If we ever get home," suggested a private at his left.

Hoping to save their steps, hundreds hurried down the railroad tracks. As the Ninth tramped across the bridge in a cloud of dust and against a setting sun, they presented a striking picture.

NINTH'S BAND PLAYS.

The field skirting the Boston & Albany tracks was quickly filled with troops and spectators. Under a row of pine trees the local branch of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness had erected a refreshment booth where coffee and cake and sandwiches by the basket were served to the Ninth.

The full Ninth band marched and played until many of the companies had entrained. All but five members of the band went home, having declined to take the Federal army oath.

This left for a border band the oldest men in the band organization, "Jimmy" Coughlin, the drum major of the "Fighting Ninth." Sergeant Allen F. Thode, French horn, Boston, eight years; Sergeant C. F. Parry, French horn, Boston, eighteen years; George H. Sturtevant, trombone, Lynn, twenty-five years; Private Frank G. Fraerer, French horn, Dorchester, six months, with the Ninth.

It was some job to load the supply cars with forage and equipment. A war supply of ammunition was carried by the Ninth. Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole visited Brigadier-General Sweetser and told the correspondents that if another train bumped the pioneer Massachusetts troop train there would be "some noise." He said the usual allotment per man was ninety rounds but that the Ninth was going South with 175 rounds a man.

TWENTY-FIVE MILES AN HOUR.

The Ninth left the Bay State with a roster of forty-one officers and 938 men, and four horses and twenty-two wagons, the latter on flat cars.

The regiment is traveling South at a maximum of twenty-five miles an hour in fifty-two coaches, and the other two sections have seventeen cars.

Brigadier-General Sweetser honored Colonel Logan, who, like him, is a judge of a district court, by travelling with his staff on the first section.

Colonel Logan and staff occupy the Pullman Pharsalia and coupled behind it, and serving as brigade headquarters en route, is the Gasconede, in the forward end of which General Sweetser has a stateroom. General Sweetser invited the Boston war correspondents to select their berths in his coach, "to keep in touch with things," as he expressed it.

2,400 MILES ON PLANKS.

On this section are Companies L, A, D and C, forming the First Battalion of the Ninth, commanded by Major William J. Casey, head of the municipal printing plant.

The privates are traveling in day coaches without sleeping accommodations. To face a 2,400-mile journey without other sleeping facilities than are afforded by a seat in an every-day coach is no picnic. The men complained about the hardship today. They said they couldn't sleep very well and that their joints ached.

On the platform are huge galvanized barrels filled with iced water and with wooden covers. From these young reservoirs the men fill their canteens.

Late Mexico Bulletins

Washington, June 27.—Pancho Villa, whose raid on Columbus, N. M., brought on the Mexican crisis of today, not only is alive but now is dickering with Carranza to join his forces against the United States, according to private advices reaching the State Department today.

Galveston, Tex., June 27.—A private message from Mexico City states that the Mexican reply to the American ultimatum has started for Washington and that it is a complete defiance of the demands made by the Washington government.

EIGHTH IS LAST TO START FOR BORDER

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

On Board Eighth Regiment Troop Train, June 27.—In company with the other regiments of the Massachusetts militia "en route" for Mexico, the Eighth Regiment marked time all last night and early today. "Marked time" is the proper phrase, particularly for the Eighth. All night long the men waited expectantly for the orders to move on to the trains. They watched the Ninth, then the Fifth and then the Second pack up and march away, with envious eyes, but still no orders came for the Eighth. They just stayed and "marked time" until early today when the train pulled out.

It was a busy night for the Eighth. Under the eerie, shifting eyes of giant searchlights, the men bustled to and fro. While baggage, stores and equipment were being knocked down for travel, taken to the sidetrack and packed aboard the freight cars, officers shouting commands, men tugging and hauling at the unwieldy equipment, a dozen women (it was whispered they were Back Bay society folk) stood in the background and as each brave soldier fell to the ground (for a rest) they were at his side in an instant with demijohns of hot coffee and applications of ham covered with bread, tied up his wounds and sent him back to the battle line revived and invigorated.

The women were members of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness and working under a Mr. Hayden they certainly lived up to their name of being "prepared" in the minds and eyes of every man-jack in the regiment. The coffee and sandwiches were a godsend to the soldiers, as many of the men had worked from sundown without anything to eat.

At daybreak, the camp presented a desolate appearance after the past week of tremendous activity. The Eighth Regiment was the only detachment on the ground. But the men cared little for appearances. They continued to work unflaggingly on the enormous amount of equipment and early in the day had the satisfaction of cleaning it all up.

It became quite chilly just before daybreak, and huge bonfires were lighted in each company street. The men needed no second invitation to get a "shin-roast" and the fires did much to drive off many incipient colds.

Quartermaster Sergeant Ed Hoyt of Company F and his kitchen detail led in the drive on the baggage and equipment and their snappy work was a strong impetus to the other baggage movers. All night long they sang a chorus of popular songs that kept everybody in good humor, and was a welcome diversion to the hard labor.

At 5 a. m. the kitchen stoves were sent down to the sidetrack and set up on their sand beds in baggage cars, and at 6 a. m. the orders came to break camp. The men jumped at the work with a will, and shortly before 7 were installed in their particular trains. They sat down in the seats they are to occupy night and day for the next few days with sighs of relief and with the strong hope within them that they would get away from Framingham without further delay.

A few minutes after 7, breakfast call was sounded, and the men, famished after the night's work on the chilly, damp camp grounds, went at their food with a vengeance. Breakfast over at 7:30, the men had just setled down for a nap when the trains started to move for Chicago, their first official stopping place.

Offer Two Companies if Second Call Is Made

Two companies of volunteers from Haverhill were offered to Governor McCall in anticipation of a second call for Bay State militia.

The first of these was offered by Sergeant Harry H. Short of Haverhill, a veteran of the Spanish war. Governor McCall was told that Sergeant Short had seen service in Cuba eighteen years ago and that since then he had completed twelve years of active service in Company F, Eighth Regiment, M. V. M.

The other proffer came from Captain Wilfred D. Lambert of Haverhill, who is the head of a rifle team of seventy-five members, every one of whom is an expert marksman.

Right of Way for Troop Trains

Washington, June 27.—War Department supplies and troop trains have the right of way on all American railroads. Through the American Railway Association the department, it was learned today, has at its disposal all the rolling stock it desires.

As fast as freight is sent to the border, the empty cars will be "deadheaded" back to distribution points.

Cars containing War Department material bear a special placard and this is recognized by every dispatcher and train crew as giving it the right of way.

INDIANA SENATOR OFFERS REGIMENT

By International News Service.

Washington, June 27.—Senator Thomas Taggart of Indiana will raise a regiment, equip it and go into service with it, if volunteers are called by the President. Senator Taggart offered the regiment at the time of the Vera Cruz incident and has written Governor Ralston of Indiana, renewing the offer under present conditions. If his offer is accepted, Senator Taggart will resign his seat.

PLAN MASS MEETING TO HELP DEPENDENTS

Mayor Zebedee E. Cliff of Somerville announces that a public patriotic mass meeting will be held either in the High School auditorium or the State Armory on Thursday evening of this week to devise ways and means to render assistance to the dependents of the members of the two local militia companies.

5TH REGT. EAGER FOR MEXICO

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Aboard Troop Train of Fifth Regiment, June 27.—"On to Mexico" is the slogan of Colonel Willis W. Stover's "Dandy Fifth," 1,000 strong.

Being one night nearer the border brought about a remarkable change in the men. The suspense is over. They have an object in view. The seven-day stay at Camp Whitney worked wonders and the men are, indeed, a fit looking lot.

After a night of cat naps the boys, still tired, as a result of yesterday's most strenuous efforts, turned out, stretched their legs, then lined up with outstretched mess paraphernalia in their hands.

Fried eggs, bacon, corn bread and coffee was the breakfast menu, and, believe me, the boys certainly did justice to that meal. The night had been a hard one for them. A "tourist coach" sounds well, but the boys had none other than the ordinary coach of the lowback red plush variety.

SLEPT ACROSS SEATS.

The seats were adjusted so that the men faced each other. They went to "bed" with their heads on one seat and their feet on another.

They didn't grumble about it, however, and the same spirit, a combination of seriousness and jollification, which has prevailed while the men have been at the concentration camp at Framingham, was evident.

The sendoff given the boys of the Fifth will never be forgotten. Fully 15,000 people including mothers, sisters, sweethearts, friends and relatives, all carrying some little token to "their boy," crowded the congested freight yard, as treacherous as it was, with its countless moving, shifting trains and amid the surroundings of puffing and snorting engines, the shouting of orders, the dim light of the lanterns held in the hands of the yard men; the "last good-by," the last kiss was given. At 1 o'clock the nine-coach train pulled out through the network of freight cars and started its first lap of the 2,000-mile journey.

Mothers wept, strong men broke down, sweethearts and wives clung to their loved ones.

BAND HELPED SOME.

The seriousness of the occasion was upon them. For days they had somewhat evaded the real issue and the visits of the mother to her son had been affairs of real enjoyment.

Last night it was different. The uncertainty of it all caused mothers to wonder. Not a boy flinched, however; cheer after cheer was given for the heroes, for they were heroes just to go through such a demonstration without giving in to the tender instincts.

"Gus" Helm with his grand old band of musicians saved the night. Taking a stand under an arc light on Pearl street, near the New Haven Railroad freight sheds, Musician Heim and his band blew themselves red in the face. Patriotic, ragtime, some "old timers" and the "Dandy Fifth" was the order of the music.

Just as the band would stop, up would pipe a mixed sextette consisting of soldier boys of H Company from Charlestown, together with their sweethearts. Elsie Anderson, Grace, Adaline and Eva Perry were the girl singers. They all live in Everett. The voices blended harmoniously and "Gus" had considerable competition.

The campaign song with the group, the words of which were composed by "Joe" Kane of H Company, and the music by Corporal Stone, both well-known boys of Charlestown, made a big hit. The song follows:

Oh, the infantry, the infantry, with the dirt behind their ears,
Oh, the infantry, the infantry, who can lick up all the beers;
The artillery, the cavalry and the bloomin' engineers,
Couldn't lick the bloomin' infantry in a hundred thousand years.

Everybody soon caught on to the tune, and it was picked up by the throng and sung with a will.

The spirit of the residents of Pearl street deserves much credit. Mrs. Frank Stearn treated the boys with delicious milk, cookies and sandwiches, while the rest of the neighbors did their share in serving other foodstuffs.

Another feature was the work of the special aid society, headed by Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter, wife of the famous surgeon, Dr. Samuel J. Mixter of Marlboro street, Back Bay.

DR. MIXTER THE BOSS.

The doctor himself, clad in a white apron, with his sleeves rolled up, and puffing incessantly at a cigarette, was sort of foreman over the twenty society ladies of the Back Bay, prominent among whom was Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, Jr.

The Framingham women did wonderful work in the "preparedness" end, in getting the eatables together in a very few hours. The soldier boys were given hot coffee, sandwiches, eggs, crackers, fruit, in fact it was a regular feast, fit for the gods. The lads certainly did punish it. They appreciated the surprise, and in manly and courteous words told the women so.

Miss Margaret Paine of Beach Bluffs was one of the fifteen debutante waitresses. She proved to be a "good soldier." She "scouted," "flanked" and "reconnoitred" until every soldier had partaken of at least five sandwiches and two cups of coffee.

When she wanted to direct and order, she would commandeer the back of John J. Ellis, a prominent plumber of Woburn, a member of Company G, and with pencil and pad she would use the stalwart young soldier's back for a desk.

J. G. Stalling, a Boston elevated guard and a mounted scout of the Fifth, acted as "escort" for the young society miss. He was gallant as he was soldierly.

Denies Germany Urged Carranza To Defy the U. S.

Berlin, June 27.

FROM a highly competent source authority has been received to deny completely tales which have reached here from the United States intimating that the German Legation in Mexico is inspiring General Carranza to hostility to the United States.

"That is an unmitigated lie," said an official, when these reports were called to his attention. "We recognized Carranza because the United States asked us to, and have no further interest in the question.

"Once he was recognized, it was natural that our representative should keep on good terms with the head of the government and maintain friendly relations with him, but that is the limit of our activities in Mexico."

Vermont Guardsmen Move South Today

Burlington, Vt., June 27.—Approximately 1,200 cavalry and infantrymen, Vermont's quota of troops mobilized here for service on the Mexican border, slept in their blankets on the State camp ground tonight while their tents and baggage were being placed aboard two special trains that were ordered to start south about 9 o'clock today.

MOREY TELLS OF CARRIZAL MASSACRE

CONFIRMS STORY OF TRAP

Widow Is Proud of Way Captain Boyd Met Fate in Battle of Carrizal

Field HdHadQuarters, U. S. Punitive Expedition, near Casas Grandes, Mex., June 26, via radio to Columbus, N. M., June 27.—Captain Lewis S. Morey, Troop K, Tenth Cavalry, the sole officer to survive the Carrizal massacre, sat on the edge of a bunk in a hatched hut at headquarters here today and told an attentive group of fellow officers, who gathered to congratulate him as one returning from the grave, intimate details of the first real tragedy of this campaign.

Morey had spent the night in the hospital after his arrival late last evening in a motor car. Today his blood-stained garments removed and his body cleansed and refreshed, he was able to move about the camp with his left shoulder, through which a mauser bullet had seared its way, swathed in bandages.

He first held a conference with General Pershing. And then he visited his regiment in what probably will be the most remarkable reunion of this campaign. As he walked through the various little army streets, flanked by tents and the queer woven brush quarters which the men and officers have built, there was no cheering and music. But from each group some officer walked out and grasping Morey's hand exclaimed: "Glad you're back, old man; congratulations!"

Simple words, these, but they were fervently spoken, for there is no man in this command who believed he would ever see Morey again.

CAN'T FORGET THIRST.

Morey is a studious-looking man, whiskered, lean of face and spectacled. Telling his story he spoke haltingly, without exaggeration and with admirable restraint and modesty. He blamed no one, drew no conclusions, offered no hindsight suggestions as to what should have been or not have been done. His voice was emotionless, rising in tone and pitch only when he told of going without water from 6 o'clock in the morning of the 21st until 4 o'clock on the following day, wounded, and with the blistering rays of a Mexican sun beating down on him. Morey suffered thirst that will leave an impression for life. Often as he spoke of it his hand automatically reached for a canteen and he drank long and deep.

How these two troops of the 10th cavalry left Santa Domingo early that Wednesday morning and rode towards Carrizal, how Captain Boyd conferred with General Gomez and how flanking the Americans on the right and left the Carranzistas opened fire, already has been told and Morey confirmed the details that have been here-tofore related.

He added little to that fight except to say that Boyd and Lieutenant Harry Adair died like soldiers and gentlemen. He told also that the Carranzistas began hostilities. They concentrated their fire, he said, on the white officers of the United States forces. When the battle was over there was but one left.

Morey's command, consisting of only thirty-six men, was on the right flank when "the battle opened," as he put it, and he could follow the charge of Troop C under Boyd and Adair only to a fringe of brush into which men and horses disappeared.

"C Troop men told me," said Morey, "that Adair died in the irrigation ditch his head held up by a non-commissioned officer. There was water in the ditch and even while dying, Adair would plunge his face forward into it without support.

"I understand the non-commissioned officer left Adair wounded in the ditch at Adair's order and went forward to Carrizal. Then looking back he saw his officer with his eyes glaring, his head wobbling against the side of the ditch and he ran back and remained with him till death came.

"Boyd was killed when his troop made the rush for the trench in which Carranzistas had the machine guns. Just how he died I don't know."

Caught in a right-angle of fire, Morey's small detachment, as previous dispatches have related, was forced to retire. Mounts had been sent to the rear and every man, including the leader, was shot.

Alternately lying flat on their bellies and then rushing and fighting desperately the little band maneuvered to the rear. It continued to withdraw until, Morey, with one of the corporals who was bleeding profusely from the shoulder and who were Boyd's hat, found themselves with seven men behind an adobe wall near a dry hole which offered protection from the bullets, but not from the sun.

REFUGE BEHIND WALL.

Three hundred yards to the south were the Carranzistas, some mounted, some afoot, advancing, firing and yelling. They had become emboldened by the American's retirement.

"When I got behind that wall," resumed Morey in a matter-of-fact tone, "I told the men I proposed to stay there. Those who wished to I told to go."

Four men, including one wounded elected to make the desperate attempt to escape, and Morey told how he saw them ascend the hill which stretched away to the north.

"I never saw men act so strangely," he said. "They didn't run or seem to exert themselves; they simply moved away as if dazed up the hill, and by so doing they probably saved us. We who remained behind the wall saw the Carranzista horsemen riding to outflank them. The Carranzistas apparently thought they had us behind the wall safely, and bent all their efforts on getting the four who were trying to escape.

With the enemy beating the country on all sides, Morey and three black troopers lay in a hole behind the wall, that long waterless day with the sun beating squarely down on them. Night came, and with it came a welcome drop of temperature and the stars.

The wounded officer and men started trailing west on the first leg of the seventy-mile journey to Pershing's line.

TOLD MEN TO LEAVE HIM.

Morey was so weak that he could only walk a hundred yards or so at a stretch, and as the night wore on and he became weaker and weaker he concluded that it was humanly impossible for him to go further.

So he first requested and then ordered the negro troopers to leave him.

"I reasoned," he said today, "that they could go on and I couldn't, so I made them go."

The three went on. Morey, his wound bandaged as best it could be, lay down in the desert and slept. The stars were still out but dawn was breaking when he awoke strengthened by the rest. He forced himself to his feet and staggered on in the direction in which he thought lay Santo Domingo ranch, eight miles from Carrizal, and the point where the command had bivouaced the night before the fight.

He travelled compassless, having given his compass to the three men who left him along with a telegram to be sent to his wife and dispatches to Pershing.

About 4 o'clock in the morning as nearly as he could judge it, he made the ranch house and found it deserted and desolate. Manager J. T. McCabe had fled, as had the Chinese cook.

Morey sprawled face downward in a hole near the ranch house in which there was a little brackish water. He rinsed his parched mouth and drank sparingly.

Then rejuvenated, he staggered into the adobe building and found as if by a miracle a quantity of beef steak, coffee and a loaf on the stove and corn bread. As he ate, he gained strength in body and spirit.

His meal concluded, he began an investigation of his surroundings. Near the ranch he found five troopers of the 10th, stragglers from the continued fight, and gathering them together he prepared to march on.

The jerked beef in the ranch house they stowed in their pockets and those who carried canteens filled them. Morey had no canteen, so he carried an old baking powder can.

"I had learned my lesson," he said, "and had determined never to be without water again."

MEETS RESCUE PARTY.

After considering the sun a while Morey decided it would be better to wait until the heat of the day had passed. So the men washed up, and after stuffing the last of the beef into the first old hit a start was made as evening appeared. They headed for San Luis ranch, thirty-five miles to the east. After ten miles accomplished in feverish relays, they encountered the ranch manager, McCabe, with a mule team. This was a godsend, as Morey termed it.

All piled in the wagon and rode to San Luis ranch, where they arrived at midnight Saturday, joining there with Major Howze's squadron of the Eleventh Cavalry, which had been sent out by General Pershing to find them.

With the Howze squadron was a motor truck train and a truck. Morey and his men headed for headquarters. Thirty-five miles from this camp Lieutenant-Colonel James, General Pershing's aide, met the trucks with four autos and Morey was transferred to the motor car and reached here at dusk.

1,300 New York Troops Off for Brownsville

New York, June 27.—After being delayed for many hours by lack of railroad cars, the Seventh Regiment of State troops, the first unit of the New York militia to start for the border, left for Brownsville, Texas, this morning. The 1,300 men under command of Colonel Fisk, were reviewed by Governor Whitman as they marched down Fifth avenue. The next unit to leave was the Seventy-first Regiment, which will travel over the New York Central lines.

Heavy colds which develop deep-seated coughs cause inflammation of the air passages and permit in spite of medical care, weaken the system to a point where resistance easily is overcome and infectious bronchial and pulmonary troubles are the result. To relieve normal congestion, Kemp's Balsamine has been found highly beneficial in many instances.

Its lime content is so combined with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person—and it contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs of any sort. So it's safe to try.

of gratitude to thank him for the benefit they have received from the use of Plant Juice and to congratulate him on the splendid success he has had in Boston with this great remedy.

Only the other day Miss Katherine Sullivan, who resides at No. 29 Worcester street, and is a well-known and popular lady of this city, gave the following signed statement of what Plant Juice had done for her. She said:

"For over ten years I have suffered with stomach trouble, which took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. My food would ferment and cause gas and bloating with great pains after eating and I suffered untold agony. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and was so tired in the morning I felt as if I could get through the day; had backache, headache, my complexion was poor, had constipation in my bowels which were stuffed at the system I could scarcely get them. A friend told me about Plant Juice and advised me to try it. I am happy to state that after taking several bottles I have cured myself. I have no more trouble with stomach, bowels or kidneys, in fine condition and I am feeling like a new woman. I think Plant Juice is a wonderful medicine."

Plant Juice relieves all stomach trouble, gas, constipation, dizziness, headache, biliousness, after meals and on retiring, tones and destroys all poisons, corrects diseased conditions of the liver and kidneys and banishes constipation from the system. After

"You cannot gather Figs from Thistles!"

VALUES spring from Conditions that are logical as the Laws of the Universe.

The best-intentioned Tire Manufacturer cannot AVOID being heavily handicapped when competing against:—

1st—The longest Experience in Mfg. the Product.

2nd—The greatest Leverage on purchasing of Raw Materials at lowest prices, through ability to take largest quantities.

3rd—The lowest Cost of Manufacturing,—through largest VOLUME of Output.

4th—The clearly-demonstrated INTENTION to give Consumers and Dealers the full benefit of the large ECONOMIES resulting from possession of the three Cardinal Advantages above defined.

PLACE behind this set of Conditions a 47-year Record for Dependability, —Good-faith,—Initiative,—and you have a Summary which fits no other Tire Mfg. Concern, in the American field, than the B. F. Goodrich Co., which is:—

1st—The largest Rubber Factory in the world.

2nd—With a 47-year Experience in Rubber-Working.

3rd—With a raw-material Purchasing-Power indicated by the 130,000,000 pounds of Rubber Goods made, and marketed, during its latest fiscal year.

4th—With the Manufacture and Sale, during its latest fiscal year, of 50% MORE Motor-Car and Truck Tires combined, than were produced and sold by the next largest Tire Concern in America.

THE Product of such a Tire and Rubber Concern,—when marketed under such conditions,—giving the benefit of such huge Economies to Consumers may well, and logically, be considered—"The GOLD-STANDARD" in Tire Values.

Therefore:—

—When you pay MORE than the Goodrich Fair-List prices here printed, for ANY Fabric Tire, you are merely "contributing" the difference.

Because,—You CANNOT get "better" Fabric Tires,—at ANY price!

Test them thoroughly,—and see!

AD MEN PLAN TO AID DEALERS OF NATION

Philadelphia, June 27.—The message of honest, intelligent commercial publicity was delivered to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world here by men closely related to the advertising of the United States, for which $900,000,000 are appropriated yearly.

Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania, Mayor Thomas B. Smith of Philadelphia, Provost Edgar Fahsmith of the University of Pennsylvania and President Robert H. Durbin of the Poor Richard Club welcomed the delegates.

This year's convention will be memorable for actually starting a plan to furnish the retail merchants of the nation with accounting systems to demonstrate the effectiveness of advertising.

The organization will co-operate with the Federal Trade Commission in the extensive program arranged for the coming year, and especially in the fight to stamp out mail frauds.

ROOKIES TO GET BAPTISM OF FIRE TODAY

Plattsburg, N. Y., June 27. — The Plattsburg "rookies" today started on the second lap of the long hike which will conclude their course of training.

Yesterday the regiment marched eight miles out of Plattsburg before making camp. At dawn today camp was struck and the khaki-clad column advanced toward Mooers Junction. There, it is believed, the regiment will go into the first "action" against the "enemy."

The "rookies" swung out of Plattsburg at daybreak yesterday. Their destination was the site of last night's camp.

ATTACK ONE GOOD DINNER.

The advance guard arrived first, establishing an outpost. The kitchen trucks had also arrived, and a hot dinner, consisting of boiled beef, boiled potatoes, stewed tomatoes, bread, jelly and coffee, awaited the "rookies."

The meal was served to the men in their individual mess kits. Many a dish was spilled because their owners have not yet acquired the gentle art of balancing a hot aluminum cup, a meat can filled with hot beef and potatoes, a cover filled with bread and jelly, in addition to the knife, fork and spoon.

The afternoon was spent in resting and preparing for the hard manoeuvres which begin today. Supper, served at 5:30, immediately after retreat, consisted of stewed apricots, beef stew, creamed corn, assorted cakes, bread, butter and coffee.

UP WITH THE MILKMEN.

The daily conference was held after supper, at which the work to be accomplished during the week was explained by the camp commander.

The problem for today was a continuation of yesterday's. The "enemy" was expected to meet between Mooers Junction and Altona. It will be represented by a battalion of regular infantry.

All the students came into camp yesterday without any sign of exhaustion. An old swimming hole proved a popular place with the regiment, almost every man availing himself of the opportunity to swim and bathe.

Reveille is to be sounded at 5:15; breakfast at 6, and the daily marches begun at 7.

The Dark Horse

IT'S my job to pick winners.

My customers rightly expect it, as part of my service.

I went through the Delion plant at Trenton and saw a Tire made under the personal supervision of the John E. Thropp Sons Company. It looked good—and ought to be good—If the many years' reputation of these nationally-known builders of tire-making machinery means anything.

Then I watched this Tire perform, under every sort of road condition. I've never seen a more consistent performer, in giving extra mileage and freedom from tire troubles.

So I've taken on the Delion Tire. It looks good to me —

In addition, I can give my customers a little extra service. I am the sole Delion Tire representative here — instead of dividing responsibility with a dozen others. It is up to me alone to build Delion business, both for the factory and myself, —on a CUSTOMER'S-PERMANENT-SATISFACTION basis.

Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the causes which produce the affection" says Dr. J. W. Ray, of Blockton, Ala. Continuing he says, "Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, and we must remember that headache is to be treated according to the same rule. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of the trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose, anti-kamnia tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one to three hours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headache, neuralgic and particularly the headaches of women."

When we have a patient subject to regular attacks of sick headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than "Actoids," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack, he should take two A-K Tablets. Such patients should always be instructed to carry a few anti-kamnia tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

Anti-kamnia tablets at all druggists.

"Watch Your Step"

To all those that suffer terribly with sore, tired, aching feet, the least jar or misstep causes untold agony—but immediate relief is at hand, for there is one remedy that has never failed to help sore feet. No matter how long you have suffered, just get from any drug store a bottle of Minard's reliable, creamy liniment and use as directed—for instantly you will find that nothing is as effective for your poor, sore, tired, aching, perspiring feet — and you will wonder at its magic. It never burns or blisters and stains neither flesh nor clothing. It is clean and economical to use—and will surely help you.—Advertisement.

DENY CASEMENT BROKE LAWS OF ENGLAND

By International News Service.

London, June 27.—The prosecution in the high treason trial of Sir Roger Casement closed its case this afternoon, after producing evidence to show that the defendant had carried on an active anti-British propaganda among Irish prisoners in Germany.

In opening for the defence Alexander Sullivan, K. C., declared that Casement had not violated the British law.

While Attorney-General, Sir Frederick Smith, was reviewing Sir Roger's career the prisoner sat with his head on his hand. After reciting Sir Roger's efforts to organize an Irish brigade among Irish prisoners in Germany, Sir Frederick said:

> I pause deliberately to say that if there is any explanation of Sir Roger Casement's original journey to Germany which can be justified or reconciled with his professional allegiance, I hope his counsel will present it.

Sir Frederick turned from the story of Sir Roger's activities in Germany to the landing of the expedition in Ireland, saying: "We must now pass to that unhappy country which has been the scene of so many cruel and cynical conspiracies, but never of one more cruel and cynical than this."

The Attorney-General concluded his presentation of the case with these words: "I hope I have outlined the facts without heat and without feeling. Neither in my place would be proper. The prisoner has played a desperate game. Now he is called upon to pay the hazard."

Several soldiers—John Robinson, Michael O'Connor, Michael Moore, the last in uniform with an empty sleeve, and John Neill in hospital garb—gave testimony during the afternoon of Sir Roger's speeches and promises to Irish prisoners in Germany.

French Make Slight Gains Before Verdun

By International News Service.

London, June 27.—The repulse of a night attack made by the Germans with grenades west of the Meuse river and a slight advance east of the river, on the Verdun front, were reported in official communique issued by the French war office today.

To the west of the Meuse the Germans renewed their battering ram assaults against Hill No. 304 trying to drive the French from their trenches with grenades. The attack failed, however, and the Germans were driven back to their own lines.

To the east of the Meuse the French are pressing strongly against the Thiaumont works, which was taken by the Germans last week. Some progress has been made there, but the attacks are still in progress.

The Germans still maintain their foothold in the village of Fleury, but their attempts to advance against the French trenches in front of Souville and Bellville were immediately halted by the concentrated fire of the French guns. Severe losses were inflicted.

a point south of Artois to Flanders the British and French guns are pounding the German positions. At some points the bombardment has been incessant for seventy-two hours. German trenches have crumbled before the salvos and at a dozen points the Anglo-French forces were able to advance past the first German line with a slight loss.

The text of the French official communique follows:

"On the left bank of the Meuse a grenade attack during the night directed by the enemy against one of our trenches west of Hill No. 304 was easily repulsed.

"On the right bank local operations, which we carried out during the night enabled us to increase our progress in the region about the Thiaumont wood. There was rather a sharp conflict at the village of Fleury, where the situation is unchanged.

"On the Meuse heights a grenade attack against our positions near Moully was checked by our fire.

"In Belgium, in the course of a reconnoitring flight three of our aeroplanes dropped seventy shells on German ships off the coast."

FRENCH WOMEN GET GERMAN GREETING

The Hague, June 27.—The Zeitschrift fuer Frauenstimmrecht, the German woman suffrage organ, has sent the following greeting to the women of France:

"We feel, think and suffer like you, and swear that after this catastrophal war the women of all nations shall work unitedly to prevent forever its recurrence."

GERMANY GIVES TERMS FOR PEACE

Madrid, June 27.—The German submarine U-35 brought three letters to King Alfonso from the Kaiser. Two set forth the German peace terms, which include a demand for the restoration of the German colonies and provide for the liberation of Belgium, although that country must not be fortified near the German frontier.

110 SLAIN IN BIG KARLSRUHE RAID

Berlin, June 27.—A report on the aeroplane raid on Karlsruhe on June 22 shows that 110 persons, including five women and seventy-five children, were killed and 147 persons injured, including twenty women and seventy-nine children. A flotilla of nine aeroplanes had dropped forty shells on Karlsruhe.

Greek Steamer Sunk.

London, June 27.—The Greek steamer Nitsa, which sailed from Norfolk on June 5 for Savona, Italy, has foundered in the Mediterranean.

WAR SUMMARY

British troops and artillery from Champagne northward to the sea on the western front have launched a general attack, so much so that Berlin, in official statement, mentions "important fighting activity." The British official statement claims penetration of the German lines at ten points.

Paris maintained in its night report that there was nothing beyond the usual cannonade worth recording from the Verdun front. In its previous report Paris claimed seizure of German trenches between Fumin and Chenois, northeast of Verdun, but the German report following admits no loss and says that a strong French attack against Froide Terre ridge was repulsed.

In the Russian war theatre Berlin reports that the fighting along the Styr, while stubborn, continues successful for the Germans who, Berlin states, have captured over 11,000 prisoners since June 16. Petrograd claims that German attacks from Kolki to Sokul have been repulsed.

The Russian statement yesterday on the occupation of Bukowina said that, with the capture of Kimpolung and Kuty, the Slavs had taken "the whole of Bukowina." Later Russian statement mentioned Russian cavalry having to fight to take an Austrian position nine versts from Kimpolung. The Russians say they are progressing toward Carpathian passes to Transylvania.

Vienna maintains that Russian attacks north of Kuty, likewise in Bukowina, have been repulsed.

The Italian forces are making a general advance, with their right wing from the Sugana valley and along the Asiago plateau, according to Rome statements. Gains over the Austrians are claimed at many points. That the sudden Italian pressure has caused the Austrian forces to retreat is evident by an official admission from Vienna that "in order to safeguard full freedom of action," the Austrian front "was shortened at some points" between the Brentna and the Etsch.

Will Orpet's Story the Weirdest Ever Told in a Courtroom, Says Dorothy Dix

adventures with Marian Lambert, "the giggling girl," had been told.

He said that it was with molasses—not poison—he had started forth on the tragic errand in Feburary. Everything had been explained. His story had been told.

"Cross-examine," ordered the court.

Joslyn placed his finger delicately on the vital point of the boy's story. Slowly and delicately he twisted the finger around and sent it boring in.

CROSS-EXAMINATION STARTS.

Q.—By Attorney Joslyn—What day in September did you ride down Jessamine avenue, Lake Forest, with Marian Lambert? A.—I don't remember exactly; about the middle of September.

Q.—Did you drive with both hands? A.—I really don't know.

Q.—Your best recollection? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—You could have driven with your right hand and had the left arm around the girl, couldn't you? A.—Perhaps so, I don't know.

Q.—Was there anything in your past relations with her that would lead you to suspect she would expect you to stop on Jessamine road? A.—I can't say what she thought.

Q.—What was said when you got on the car? A.—I don't remember. Probably something was said about going into the woods. I remember she agreed to going in to the woods. We entered the woods about fifty feet.

Q.—Any undergrowth there? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—What was said when you entered the woods? A.—I don't remember, we finally sat down on the ground.

Q.—You were desperately in love with her then, weren't you? A.—Judging fromy my letters, yes—going from what followed I don't think I was.

Q.—When did you cease being desperately in love with her? A.—The latter part of September.

LOVED DESPERATELY.

Q.—Then you desperately loved her when you were in the woods with her in September? A.—Yes, I suppose so.

Q.—When did you begin to love her? A.—In the spring of 1915. My love ebbed and flowed.

Q.—Wasn't it about Christmas? A.—Maybe it was shortly after Christmas.

Joslyn then asked a number of details concerning that meeting with Marian. Orpet was compelled to answer a great many unprintable questions shot at him by Joslyn concerning his conduct with the girl. He answered the questions in a direct, but shamed-faced manner.

Dorothy Dix Tells of Ordeal of Orpet.

By DOROTHY DIX.

Waukegan, Ill., June 27.—William Orpet did not give Marian Lambert prussic acid. He gave her molasses.

That is the amazing defense that William Orpet offered on the witness stand in his own behalf and he followed it up by picturing to a stunned and breathless courtroom one of the weirdest and most grotesque scenes the human imagination was ever asked to conjure up—that of a boy and girl who had come to the climax of an illicit relationship wandering in the snow discussing their parting the boy with a bottle of molasses and water in his pocket, and the girl hiding in the breast of her coat her hand clutched full of cyanide of potassium.

There was something even hideously symbolic in the picture. Such romances so often end in death to the woman and only a sort of sickly sweetish sentimentality to the man.

William Orpet was the first witness called to the stand by the defense. He looked very little, and very young as he took his seat in the big chair and the band of gray hair across his brown locks that has come since last February looked as distinct as a white ribbon tied across his head. Except for his scarlet lips he was as palid as he will be when he is dead and like a whisper in the dead was the tonelessness of his voice.

He spoke so low that you could hardly hear a stir. You caught detached words and phrases and never once did he raise or lower his voice or use a single inflection, or did any hint of emotion or interest creep into what he was saying. Sometimes he swayed a little in his chair. Often he closed his eyes, as if in utter weariness, and his voice died away and he lapsed into silence until prodded into speech again by his lawyers. He looked and talked like a person in a dream, or one under a hypnotic spell.

TELLS STORY CALMLY.

"He looks as if he had just as soon die as live," I heard a woman whisper behind me and it was the truth. Of all in the room, the worn, white-faced boy on the witness stand semed the least interested and the least concerned in the story.

And what a curious, "kid story," it was, with its account of renting a dress suit to go to a ball, and consulting with the clerk in the clothing store of whom he hired the clothes whether it would be swell—to wear a gray overcoat, and, when the clerk gave it as his opinion that the highest fashion demanded a black coat borrowing the clerk's for the grand occasion and then, incidentally, having the borrowed overcoat figure in the tragedy of his life."

And what a story of old, old wickedness it was, when he told about his relations with the girl whose ruin had meant to him only a Summer pastime and whom he threw away as casually as he would an old glove when he was tired of her.

It was these alterations of childishness and age, of innocence and sophistication, of callow ignorance and of uncanny knowledge that made this story that William Orpet told as strange a one as was ever told on the witness stand, and not the least of its strangeness was that it was babbled forth by a boy who is so immature in appearance he does not look fifteen years old.

REVEALS LOVE SECRETS.

After Orpet had told his name and residence and said that he was twenty-one years old on the 4th of last March, Mr. Potter plunged him into the very heart of his life history by asking him about his relationship with Marian Lambert. And he began with the letters that Orpet received last Fall, after he had gone back to the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

This was after they had lived through their torrential love idyl, through the golden Summer under the green boughs of Helm's Woods and along the shores of the Sapphire Lake. Almost as soon as Orpet got back to school Marian wrote to him that she believed that she was in trouble.

No, he hadn't saved her letters. He hadn't thought it worth while. He wouldn't have known what to have done with them. So he destroyed all of her letters; but she kept all of his letters tied up with ribbon in her desk.

"I wrote her," said the boy in his lifeless voice, "that I was sure that she was mistaken, and no such conditions existed.

But she was worried and kept writing me that she was afraid, so I sent her some medicine."

"What kind of medicine?" inquired Mr. Potter.

TELLS OF MAKING TRYST.

"Molasses and water," answered Orpet, with the ghost of a smile flitting across his white face.

Then Orpet took up the episode of the mysterious bottle that he had bought of the drug clerk and to which so much reference was made. He said he had bought an eight-ounce bottle, intending to put in it the contents of two smaller bottles of shaving lotion that he had. Afterwards he decided to make some more "dope" for Marian, as she was continually crying out to him for drugs to relieve her trouble.

"So I went down to a grocery store and got some molasses and mixed it with water and fixed it up for her," he said, "because I promised to take her something, and I put this in the bottle I had bought."

Then Orpet came to the crisis of his story.

"On Tuesday noon, February the eighth," he said, wearily, "I left Madison and started to Lake Forest. I had to wait over a while in Milwaukee and I went to a picture show.

"I got to Lake Forest about 5 o'clock and called up Marian Lambert. I said, 'Hello, Marian, do you know this voice?' and she said, 'Yes'; and I said, 'I shall come up to see you,' and she said, 'No, Josephine Davis is here'; and I said, 'Where shall I see you?' and she said, 'At the Sacred Heart station, and then something was said about some medicine that I had brought her."

"I walked towards home, down the Jesamine road, and I walked around until about 10:30 and then I went into the garage and slept in an unused room. No one knew that I was there. I got up about 7:30 and walked about until the 8:15 car that Marian would take came along. I walked in the woods to keep from being recognized and twice I went over to the station to see if she was coming."

"I WAS DONE WITH THAT."

"Finally the two girls came and Josephine Davis boarded the train and I came out from behind the trees and Marian came toward me and I said 'Hello' and she said 'Hello.' I said, 'Let's go into the station; I don't want to be seen,' and she said 'No, let's go into the woods.'

"I stopped to tie my shoe and she went on and I followed her. We walked about and talked and we went to the ravine and I brushed the snow from a log and we sat down upon it.

"Marian would only talk about one subject; she kept saying that she was in trouble and I must stay and get her out. I told her that I was done with all of that.

"She went out on a log near the ravine and I told her she would fall and hurt herself. She said, 'You wouldn't care if I did.' She kept talking about being in trouble and I kept telling her that nothing that I had done would account for it.

TOLD HER HE WOULDN'T WRITE.

"Finally I asked her if the time hadn't come for her to take the car to school. She said that didn't bother her. I didn't think that it was significant, but I did afterward.

"We kept walking about and at one place where there was a little knoll and she was on one side and I was on the other she slipped and fell and I noticed that she had her hand in the breast of her coat and couldn't help herself any, so I lifted her up.

"Then I gave her the bottle of molasses and water that I had brought and told her that it was medicine, but she would not take it.

She said, 'That won't do me any good,' and she kept talking about her trouble and, at last, we reached the place that is called the 'Three Oaks. I then said, 'Well, I must go back to Madison. I must catch my train,' and started off, and she called out after me, 'I suppose that you will write to me,' and I said, 'No, it won't do any good.'

"And then I heard a little sound and I turned around and saw her away and I thought she was falling and I went back and she had fallen on the ground. And she had three convulsions and then she lay still.

Hilton's Dissolve

Formal announcement was made today that Philip Hilton and Joseph Hilton, trading as The Hilton Company, had dissolved partnership. Joseph Hilton has withdrawn from the business and Philip Hilton has acquired his interest.

VOLUNTEERS IN RELIEF WORK WANTED

A call for volunteers was sent out today by the women who are giving of their own time to aid the families of militiamen on their way to the front.

These women need assistants who stand ready to lend the helping hand in the endeavor to care for those dependent on the militiamen. So if you can give up a part of your time to a worthy cause, respond at once to the urgent call.

The call came from Mrs. John Balch of the investigation and aid committee, which has quarters in the Commonwealth Armory. Mrs. Balch said:

"There is urgent need of helpers who are willing to give three or four hours daily for four days of the week, investigating cases of need.

"The money which was given a short time ago to start this work and pay for the incidental expenses must be added to and if those who cannot do the work of investigation would help in supporting this work by contributions of money it would greatly aid the cause.

WORKERS NEEDED.

"Above all we want women in this work upon whom we can depend. It is of no use to accept the responsibility of taking up the work and then not report for duty. We need as many as twenty automobiles daily.

"The work is more important than it seemed at first.

"It can be done along systematic lines, if every one will do a little part of the work daily. We are going to have an office at the State House for the dependents."

Mrs. Barrett Wendell of No. 258 Marlboro street and other Back Bay women saved many of the militia of the Framingham camp from going away hungry. They had 20,000 sandwiches ready for the boys who didn't have time to get a square meal during the confusion and hurry of departure.

RELIEF REAL PREPAREDNESS.

Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, who had a hand in the distribution of the sandwiches, said: "Nothing gave me more pleasure than this. This was an item of preparedness that the women of the Special Aid Society greatly enjoyed. It was a real treat to see how much those sandwiches were appreciated. I think any one who witnessed the scene would have acknowledged that the sandwiches fitted in just where they were wanted."

The Special Aid Society of No. 541 Boylston street call upon women to make 'Sewing Kits' for the soldiers. They may be made at home and sent to the headquarters of the society. These kits are to contain:

- One pair of blunt pointed scissors.
- Black, white and khaki thread.
- Eight safety pins.
- Twenty plain pins.
- Packages of needles.
- Three large needles.
- Small white buttons, large white khaki buttons.

With these may be sent, securely packed, colored glasses for protection from the sand, when possible.

Miss Letitia Mason, the executive secretary of the Special Aid Society, calls upon women in their homes to make one or more of these sewing kits, as the stock of them in Boston is now exhausted. They may be made by young and old and sent to No. 541 Boylston street.

Citizens of Brookline today petitioned the town selectmen to appoint a committee to raise funds for the families of militiamen and to furnish comforts to the soldiers themselves. Selectmen Walter J. Cusick and Payson Dana were appointed to confer with the petitioners with power to appoint a relief committee. The Brookline Board of Trade will discuss similar steps tonight.

MURPHY MUST REINSTATE EMPLOYES

Judge Churchill in the Dorchester court today ordered Public Works Commissioner Edward F. Murphy of Boston to reinstate in the city's employ Frank A. McInnis, Bliss W. Robinson and Storg L. Durkee, whose discharges several months ago gave Boston a political stir.

In summing up, Judge Churchill made this important statement:

"It follows from my findings that the order for the removals was made by the respondent without proper cause and in bad faith, and that the order must be reversed in each case, and the three petitioners reinstated to their offices."

McInnis was engineer of the sewer and water division of the highway department. Robinson was superintendent of the main drainage at the pumping station in South Boston and Durkee was superintendent of permits in the street laying-out division.

The men were discharged last Winter along with a number of other employes. During the hearing in the Dorchester court, the three attempted to show that their positions were not abolished by Commissioner Murphy in good faith, nor in the interest of economy.

CURLEY GETS SHIFT FOR U. S. SAILOR

Mayor Curley today succeeded in having James F. Powers, a fireman on the U. S. S. Minnesota, transferred to the U. S. S. Rhode Island. Powers is the champion welterweight boxer in the navy. He was formerly on the Rhode Island, whose home station is Boston, but on being married recently he was transferred to the Minnesota. On account of his marriage he wanted to remain on the Rhode Island.

PITTSFIELD MAN KILLS HIMSELF

Pittsfield, June 27.—Howard G. McKegg, twenty-three, married, died early today from a self-inflicted bullet wound in his temple. He fired the shot in his room this noon after having attended a carnival.

$155 IN FUND FOR THE MILITIAMEN

The fund started by Mayor Curley with a check for $100 for luxuries for the soldiers was today turned over to the committee appointed by Governor McCall. It now amounts to $155.

Hold Youth Who Admits Stealing Modiste's Goods

Percy Newcomb, twenty-one, is supposed to be a house painter, but he is a collector on the side, but unauthorized, of laces and gowns and dress goods. He pleaded guilty in the city court today to larceny of $1,600 worth of such goods from a Back Bay modiste, Mrs. Carrie V. Hazlewood in the Ilkley, at Huntington avenue and Cumberland street, on May 20 and 21, when he was supposed to be painting the woodwork there. He took the material away in a suitcase and trunk.

Judge Dowd declined jurisdiction and held Newcomb in $3,000 for the Grand Jury. The police found in Newcomb's room on Rose street not only all the property stolen from Mrs. Hazlewood, but also about $2,000 worth more, which is now held at the Back Bay police station for identification. Other Back Bay modistes have complained of goods being stolen.

Youth Declares Girl Slapped Him Twice in the Face

Two poodle dogs, an auto, a young woman and a young man figured in the hearing in Municipal court today of Miss Vine Woodland, Oxford terrace, Back Bay, who was accused of slapping Walter Hardenbrook, also of Oxford terrace, in the face.

According to the testimony, on June 13, when on his way to change clothing for the Tech reunion, young Hardenbrook drove his auto into Oxford terrace. Miss Woodland ran out to get two poodle dogs which were thought to be in danger, it was said.

"Next Miss Woodland came over and started a verbal argument," said Hardenbrook. "She then slapped my face. Later on she slapped my face again."

Miss Woodland denied slapping the youth's face, and accused him of calling her "unladylike names." She said she had pushed him and charged him with "threatening" her dogs several times.

Judge Duff found the young woman not guilty.

ROXBURY GIRL TO WED MILITIAMAN

After the court had waived the five-day marriage law, Frank M. Powers of No. 5 Harvard avenue, Roxbury, a member of F Company, First New Hampshire Regiment, took out a license to wed Nora Woodfine of No. 23 Newburn street, Roxbury. He is twenty-four years old and she twenty-three. They will be married tomorrow in St. Francis de Sales Church. The groom will then join his regiment, which is going to the Mexican border.

"WAR BRIDE" IS MARRIED AT SUNRISE

LeBaron R. Briggs, Jr., son of Dean Briggs of Harvard, a member of A Battery, First Field Artillery, and, therefore, starting for Mexico now, holds the record, so far as known, of getting a clergyman out early in the morning for a "war bride" marriage.

Mr. Briggs was engaged to Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason of Bailey road, Newton. They planned to wed this Fall. The mobilization order made them decide to marry before Mr. Briggs left for the border.

With a waiver of the five-day law from Waltham court Mr. Briggs secured a leave of absence after the departure order came late Sunday night. He arrived at the Mason home early yesterday morning. There was trouble rousing a clergyman at that hour, but the ceremony was performed at the bride's home by the Rev. George A. Wilson of Cambridge, who arrived at 5:30 a. m. There was a reception and wedding breakfast, and then Mr. Briggs returned to Framingham.

HOLD DRAWING FOR BALLOT POSITIONS

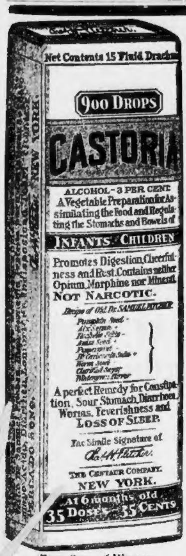

Drawings for positions on the primary ballots to be used at the State primaries, September 26, held under the supervision of the Secretary of State, resulted in giving the Republican party the first position, at the left of the ballot, the Prohibition party the middle position, and the Democratic party the third position, at the right of the ballot.

ASTHMA SUFFERERS

PHYSICIAN'S DISCOVERY MAKES BREATHING EASY.

In New England where Bronchitis, Asthma and other diseases of the throat and lungs are so prevalent, some wonderfully speedy recoveries have recently been effected by the use of a treatment known as Oxidaze, first introduced by Dr. Eugene Howard, a prominent Worcester physician.

Oxidaze, which is a powerful, but highly concentrated combination of curative agents, comes compressed in a small tablet which the patient dissolves in the mouth. One of these simple and pleasant tasting tablets put in the mouth just before going to bed clears out all the choked up air passages, soothes the irritated bronchial tubes and enables the asthmatic sufferer to breathe easily and naturally while lying down and to get a comfortable night's sleep. Oxidaze tablets are harmless, contain no dangerous habit-forming drugs and are not at all expensive. All druggists sell them and agree to refund money to any purchaser who does not obtain successful results from their use. This certainly makes their test an easy matter to all who suffer from Asthma or Bronchitis.—Advertisement.

$50,000 Ty Cobb "Comes Back" Nuxated Iron Makes Him Winner—Greatest Baseball

Batter of all time says Nuxated Iron filled him with renewed life after he was weakened and all run down. Supplies that "stay there" strength and vim that makes men of mark and women of power.

Well known physician who has studied widely in this country and Europe, explains why taking iron enabled Ty Cobb to "come back" so quickly and show such tremendous strength and endurance. Says ordinary nuxated iron will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks' time.

Nuxated Iron has filled me with renewed life and vigor. I play a better game to-day than when I was younger.

Tyrus R. Cobb

New York, N. Y.—When interviewed in his apartment at Bretton Hall, Ty Cobb said: "Hundreds of people write to me to know how I train and what I do to keep up that force and vitality which enables me to play practically every day of the entire baseball season. They wonder why I can play a better game today than when I was younger.

The secret is keeping up the supply of iron in my blood—exactly what everyone else can do if they will.

At the beginning of the present season I was nervous and run down from a bad attack of tonsilitis, but soon the papers began to state "Ty Cobb has 'come back.' He is hitting up the old stride." The secret was iron—Nuxated Iron filled me with renewed life.

Now they say I'm worth $50,000 a year to any baseball team, yet without plenty of iron in my blood I wouldn't be worth five cents. Nuxated Iron supplies that "stay there" strength and vim that makes men of mark and women of power. Continuing, Dr. Sauer said: "Mr. Cobb's case is only one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience, which proves conclusively the astonishing power of nuxated iron to restore strength and vitality even in most complicated chronic conditions."

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in. Now at 60 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M. D.

NOTE.—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Sox and A's End Series

Connie Seeks Another

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

The World's Champions play the final game of the series with the Athletics this afternoon at Fenway Park, game being called at 3 o'clock, which is to give the team time to catch an early train for Washington, where they open a four-game series tomorrow. Manager Carrigan's men do not seem to be able to keep going, once they get a start, so the five games in a row, which they hung up last week was all they could get for a string.

The victory for the Athletics was deserved, for they hit the ball hard and safely, getting fourteen hits for sixteen bases and eight runs, four of which were off "No hit, no run" Foster, off whom they bunched four hits twice. This twirler was not right, which is needless to say, for if the Connie Macks could hit him, then about any team could have.

Gregg worked three innings and got by nicely, allowing but three hits. He fanned four of the twelve men who faced him and was effective with men on. Jones got bumped for two runs on two hits, a sacrifice and a pass, while Pennock placed a man on through a pass in the ninth and then retired for Shore. A hit and a passed ball did the business for the last run.

FORM REVERSAL.

There was a reversal of form all along the line in the pitching of the champion's slab-artists and the team missed many chances for runs through the inability to hit. Out of the five wins they made, but one was free from assistance. Their first two tallies were the result of four passes on balls and a wild pitch. The third run started with a pass and Walker, who scored one of the runs in the eighth, got on through being hit in the back by Sheehan.

The game was close to the limit in the number of men used in the plays, the champions pitching Foster, Gregg, Jones, Pennock and Shore, having six pinch hitters, two of whom were pitchers, Mays and Ruth, the other pinch men being Thomas, Shorten, Henricksen and Gainer. McNally was used at second base, so that Manager Carrigan used all of his men but the following named, Agnew, Cady, Leonard and Barry.

Connie Mack used three pitchers, Wyckoff, Sheehan and Myers, with Rowe as a pinch hitter. The dreary game extended over two hours and seventeen minutes.

CONNIE LOOKS 'EM OVER.

Connie Mack took a look at some promising young material in and about Boston, sending the youngsters out to work before the game. The boys he looked over were Chester Arthur, the allscholastic pitcher from the Brookline High School, Fox, a catcher from Saugus, Scootswood, formerly of Boston College, L. Herron of Beverly, a third baseman, who made a favorable showing, Carroll of Tufts and Holy Cross, and Peckham of Medford, whose position is second base.

The Athletics appear to have picked up a young star in Witt, who has played a remarkable game at shortstop during this series. His fielding has been brilliant as any shortfield artist in either league and he is hitting the ball hard and safely, being in addition fast upon his feet. King, of Amherst "Aggies" has played at third for two games and shown much ability. Connie Mack has also picked up Lowry of Maine who reported to the team yesterday.

CAN GET START.

The Champions still have a chance to get their start here at home today when the Athletics are met. They have a tough proposition in the Washington trip. Manager Carrigan figures the Senators very much in the race owing to their pitching staff which includes Johnson, Harper, Boehling and Gallia, whom he considers good enough to keep a club going. The series in Washington should be a hard fought one, then the Boston boys go to Philadelphia where they will be compelled to fight harder than they have here in order to come off the road with a good record of victories.

The western clubs come East on July 8, Cleveland with Tris Speaker being the opening attraction at Fenway Park. While the Champions are away the Braves return for two series, opening with the Dodgers tomorrow. The trip has been most successful.

PLAYERS NUMBERED BY CLEVELAND CLUB

Cleveland, June 27.—The Cleveland players wore numbers on the sleeves of their uniforms in yesterday's game with the White Sox for the first time in the history of big league baseball.

The numbers corresponded to similar numbers set opposite the players' names on the score cards, so that all fans in the stands might easily identify the members of the home club.

The arrangement met with the approval of the fans.

SIDELIGHTS

BY HERMAN NICKERSON

TODAY'S game with the Athletics will start at 3 p. m. to permit the Boston club to catch an early train for Washington.

* * *

"NO hit, no run" Foster proved hit-table. He was taken out after four innings, the Athletics having scored five runs on eight hits, two bunches of four each in the first and fourth.

* * *

GREGG and Thomas worked from the fourth to the eighth, then Jones for one and the ninth was Pennock and Shore.

* * *

JANVRIN didn't get over fast enough on Witt's liner in the first, and it bounced off his glove for a hit. The other hits were clean cut. Quite a bombardment.

* * *

EDDIE KING of Aggie and Lawry of Maine are with the Athletics, being the recruits to join so far. Connie Mack tried out the following boys before the game: Chester Arthur, the All-Interscholastic pitcher from Brookline High; Fox, a catcher from Saugus High; Scootswood, formerly of Boston College; Carroll of Tufts and Holy Cross; catcher L. Herron of Beverly, a third sacker, who showed very well, and Peckham of Medford, a second sacker.

SCHANG fouled one in the fifth, the ball hitting him on the head, knocking him out for a while. He continued, fanning.

* * *

GREGG caught Lajoie off first on a quick throw to "Hobby" in the fifth, but "Hobby" dropped the ball.

* * *

GREGG fanned two and Walker re-tired the third man in the sixth.

* * *

WALKER hit one on the seam in the sixth, but it went right at King who took the hot one staggering. It was a tough luck slam.

* * *

WITT is fast becoming a young star. His fielding is as brilliant as any shortstop seen in Boston this season in either league. He hits well and is fast on his feet.

BRAVES AFTER WIN 4

Stallings and Band Seek Last Game in Philadelphia Today; Drawing Up in Race

Philadelphia, June 27—No one can blame George Stallings and his touring Boston Braves for feeling cheerful this morning. Three wins out of four tries against the erstwhile flying, but now falling, Phillies with another battle to be decided this afternoon, is a satisfactory condition of affairs, and if the same ratio of victories can be maintained for a time, those artful Dodgers will have a lot of food for thought.

Boston winds up its series with the Phillies today, and if the Braves can put over another win they will be trailing the Champions by only half a game for second place.

One advantage the Phillies have in their last clash of the series is that Moran has Grover Cleveland Alexander available, whereas the Braves' delivery department was somewhat weakened by the maneuvering of Manager Stallings in his successful efforts to capture both ends of yesterday's double-header.

HUGHES SAVES BOTH BOUTS.

In the first game Ed Reulbach and Tom Hughes worked, and between them, managed to down the Champions, 5-1. Hughes distinguished himself by working in two games in the same day when he was sent to the mound to relieve Nehf in the eighth frame in the closing show. Thin Tom held tight both times.

Nehf had been ordered to garrison duty on the mound in the seventh inning, relieving Ragan.

Konetchy, whose clouting has been extraordinary against the Phillies, was benched during the seventh inning for protesting a decision at the plate when Luderus scored. Big Ed fumbled the ball, but recovered it in what he thought was time to nail the runner at the pen. Umpire O'Day thought otherwise, however, and, when Konetchy kicked, ordered the heavy hitter to the showers.

The Champions took a one-run lead in the second inning of the first game and held it until the eighth, when the Braves staged one of their well-known rallies and put three runs over the plate. They followed this outburst in the ninth inning with two more counters.

MAGEE HAS REVENGE.

Sherwood Magee punctured the Phillies' hopes in the eighth with a scorching single which scored Maranville and Fitzpatrick. Egan singled in this frame and Maranville walked. Evers filed to Cravath and Egan took third after the catch. Then Fitzpatrick singled, scoring Egan, and Magee followed with his blow, which put the Braves two runs to the good.

The second game, which the Braves took by a 9-5 score, was a nip and tuck struggle until the tenth inning, when the Moran defence became demoralized and the Braves put over four runs.

It happened like this: Smith reached first on Bancroft's fumble and went on to second on a passed ball. Snodgrass laid down a pretty sacrifice bunt, even though he had two strikes on him, and Smith made third. Gowdy looked dangerous, so McQuillan passed him. Fitzpatrick, going up for Hughes, was hit, filling the corners.

Maranville's best was a tap to McQuillan, but George threw wide trying to head off Smith and "Red" counted. Evers singled cleanly to right and Gowdy and Fitzpatrick raid off. After Collins had rapped into a force out, Magee belted safely and Evers cashed.

Barnes did the honors for the Braves in the windup and retired the three Phils facing him.

MINER BROWN SUES ST. LOUIS MAGNATES

Chicago, June 27.—Mordecai Brown, formerly manager of the St. Louis Feds, has filed suit for $12,500 in the Federal District Court here against Otto Stifel and Phil Ball, owners of the club, alleging that amount is still due him on the unfinished portion of his contract.

According to his petition, Brown contracted to manage the St. Louis club for the years 1914-16, inclusive, for the total remuneration of [illegible]. He says he received pay for but one year's employment.

Walthour Made Favorite in Big Race

Perpetual champions are few and far between. While Bobby Walthour isn't really a champion he's so near it that nobody will deny him the honor. That he's perpetual there's no doubt about that.

In spite of his twenty years on the racing wheel, Walthour has been made an odds-on favorite in tomorrow night's twenty-five-mile motor-paced race at the Revere cycle track. His opponents will be Leon Didier and George Wiley.

This is quite an honor for the veteran, but according to the "wise men" no more than he deserves. The form that he displayed at the beach oval Saturday night was clearly the best that he has shown in several years. Many predict that he's in for a big season. If the "dope" goes right then the others had better look out.

Two years ago Walthour made more records and won more races than any pace follower in the game. Many of these records he still holds.

The second feature on tomorrow night's bill will be a ten-mile match motor-paced race between Fred Herbert of Fall River and "Pinkie" Turville of Revere. Herbert's entry into the paced ranks was a distinct success. In his first race he beat Turville, Suter and Columbatte. His match with Turville is the result of an argument as to the respective merits of the riders.

The usual amateur and professional events will precede the big card.

LORD IN TROLLEY LEAGUE

Gardiner, Me., June 27.—Harry Lord, former American and Federal League star, who recently signed as manager of the Lowell Eastern League club, has signed to play with the local team in the Trolley League.

CAN SEE VICTORY FOR SOX

Carrigan Has Hopes of Landing Gonfalon; Does Not Figure Indians to Win.

By WILLIAM F. CARRIGAN.
Manager World's Champion Red Sox.

I cannot see how anyone can figure the American League race this season having less than six clubs with a goood chance for the pennant. These six are the ones now in order in the standing. You have to count Cleveland in it for a while, but I cannot see how they can win with the other clubs chasing them as strongly as they are. When there is so little difference between the first and sixth clubs it is anybody's race.

The only club really out of it is the Athletics, and they are playing the kind of baseball that makes trouble for everybody. Of course, Washington has to be figured as a club likely to win the flag. This club has Johnson, Harper, Gallia and Boehling, four good pitchers. They will keep the club up in the race, in fact, going right they would keep any club up there.

The race in the American League League is the hottest in its history for this time in the schedule and I feel that with my pitchers continuing in the form they have recently displayed the Boston club has a very strong chance to repeat. Injury and illness have handicapped the team for a while, but the physical condition is now as it should be.

Jack Barry is fit and will be taken on the trip to Washington and Philadelphia. The Boston players have plenty of confidence, which is a big asset.

BEEBE NEW IDOL OF CLEVELAND FANDOM

Cleveland, June 27. — Fred Beebe, the former University of Illinois pitcher and ex-National League pitcher, who performed in the International League last season, but refused to join the Buffalo club this season, is Cleveland's new baseball idol. The veteran right-hander showed Manager Fohl a lot when shutting out the White Sox yesterday.

With Morton on the disabled list and the rest of the staff pretty well shot to pieces, Fohl was forced to take a long chance in reaching out for a seasoned hurler. He had good reports concerning Beebe, and, judged on his work yesterday, old Fred is going to fit in snugly.

BAN IS OPPOSED TO PINCH-HITTER GAG

Chicago, June 27.—The pinch-hitter craze with which the majority of the American League managers appear to have become afflicted, has a strong opponent in President Ban Johnson. He declared that he favored baseball legislation to curb the habit.

Johnson thinks that managers by constantly shifting their pitchers are not only injuring the pitchers, but are reducing the interest felt by steady patrons of the game in the players.

NOTED RACE HORSE DEAD.

Lexington, Ky., June 27.—Nasturtium, the famous race horse and sire, winner of the Double Event and Flatbush stakes at Sheepshead Bay in 1902, is dead at the farm of his owner, George J. Stoll. The late William C. Whitney paid $50,000 for Nasturtium as a two-year-old.

WHITTED IS OUT OF GAME.

Philadelphia, June 27.—George Whitted, the Phillies' hard-hitting left fielder, is on the crippled list with a sore left arm. He is expected to be out at least a week.

NEW YORK RING TALK

NEW YORK, June 27.—Joe Cox's heavyweight aspirations will be put to a test tonight when he hooks up with Bill Brennan, Leo P. Flynn's champion, at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn.

JOSH MATHEWS of Brooklyn and Harney Williams of Philadelphia will appear on the same card.

TUTWILER DRIVES 'EM OVER FOR GRAYS

Providence, June 27.—Counting two runs in the eighth inning the Grays got back on a fresh winning streak by downing Tommy Leach's Rochester team, 6-5. Tutwiler's two triples were the winning blows for the locals.

Welling in Local Debut — Draws Britton as Foe

By RINGSIDE.

Naturally, Jimmie Johnston, the noted New York fistic impresario, is very sweet on Joe Welling, the Chicago welterweight, who makes his Boston bow in tonight's windup event with Jack Britton, the generally accepted champion of the division, at the Arena.

Johnston claims Welling is a strong and willing two-handed workman; as good as they come in the class and will succeed in outpointing Britton. Welling was brought out by Larney Lichtenstein of Chicago, but recently deserted him for Johnston.

The Duke of Broadway declares in unmistakable language Welling is a near-champion and is bound to score a riotious hit at the Triple-A.

Same as usual, the Armory A. A. management has failed to tell the boxing fans what weight Britton and Welling have contracted to make, and whether Phil Powers or Maffitt Flaherty, or some New Yorker, is going to handle their set-to.

Miah Murray and his confreres should take the boxing public into their confidence more than they do. It is only fair that the fans should know in advance what weight the principals in the main muss are going to make; also the name of the arbitrator.

FANS WANT TO KNOW.

Such information has been held back until post-time of late months and more than once the fans have been "kidded" as to the real weights. Likewise has the arrangement caused Maffitt Flaherty, a mighty good Boston citizen, and whose calling of the winners of late weeks has been accurate, to be the recipient of a huge lot of unnecessary "booing."

It is Manager Johnston's claim Welling has defeated Ever Hammer, Phil Bloom and Young Saylor among other good boys. If Welling has bested Hammer they have had two battles, as in their last one, fought at Kenosha, Wis., early in the Spring, Hammer gained the verdict. Their set-to is reported to have been a rough, slam-bang affair, with Welling fairly close up, but whipped, at the final bell.

BETTING VERY QUIET.

A short while later Hammer gave Hon. Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion, a far worse drubbing than he administered to Welling.

There is little, if any, betting on the mill. Early today Britton ruled the warmest of favorites over Welling; in fact, there was but little Welling money in sight. However, mayhaps the newcomer will be played at Ringside when the fans learn the full particulars of the encounter; the weights and the referee; items which are mighty important.

The fans want to remember that Welling goes on as a substitute for Hon. Ted (Kid) Lewis, his stablemate. Miah Murray thinks he booked the best welter obtainable to fill the booking with Britton. The Chicago boy is no slouch. That's a sure thing.

If Welling catches Britton going his fastest he may be pretty badly outstepped and out-boxed by the speedy New Yorker. But substitutes have oftentimes proven big sensations, and who knows but Welling may register the hit of hits.

Johnny Noonan, the improving Dorchester glovesman, and "Billy" Myers, the game little New Yorker, whose bout last week was a corker, with the backers of the latter feeling sure Flaherty erred when he nominated Noonan the victor, are to go it again in the semi-final number.

The two six-rounders are also well manned. Tricky Teddy Murphy will have it out with Tony Vatlan, a former national amateur champion, and Harry Ah Chung, the Salem Chinaman, meets Jimmy Kenney of Wakefield.

REVERE BIKE NOTES

PAT LOGAN and Tim Sullivan are angling for another match with Ned Chandler and L. C. Rollins. Logan contends that if he was right when they first met, Chandler and Rollins would not stand a show. He gives Sullivan all the credit that's coming to him, but says that it was his own poor showing that lost the match.

* * *

MIKE the Barber, Revere's comedian-biker, is so cocky over his victory at the beach oval Saturday night that he is thinking of forsaking the amateur ranks and trying his luck with the money chasers.

* * *

WHILE Nat Butler does not claim to be a great linguist he's the only one at the beach who can converse with the different riders with whom he is forced to do business with year in and year out. It makes no matter whether the rider is a Frenchman, Italian, German, Belgian or any other nationality, Nat can give him his answer.

* * *

DURING his biking days Butler traveled the world o'er and picked up the foreign tongues with unusual ease. That probably accounts for his conversational diversity today.

PROBABLY no man in the game keeps a closer watch on his wheels than Leon Didier. The Frenchman makes and repairs his own bikes and is said to be the possessor of one of the finest outfits in the racing world.

* * *

FRANK KRAMER, champion of all champions, will probably be seen at Revere track before the season is much older.

* * *

MANAGER BUTLER is doing his utmost to land the national and world's middle distance championship races for the Revere Oval. It is probable that he will succeed. The Golden Wheel race is another classic listed for the seaside saucer in the near future.

PAY FOR PLAYERS RELEASED BY CLUBS

The National Baseball Commission yesterday announced an amendment to its rules with reference to players released by one club to another in a different league. According to this amendment, when a club in one league whose season begins after that of the releasing club, the player is entitled to pay on his contract with the releasing club from the time he is turned over until the season of the new club begins.

Peet's All-Star Crew — Harvard Gets Place

By DR. WALTER PEET.

The men who seem fairly entitled to have seats in the theoretical all-American varsity crew this year are:

C. J. Whiteside, Syracuse.	A. J. Osman, Syracuse.
F. R. Williams, Syracuse.	R. A. Cochran, Princeton.
L. J. Worden, Syracuse.	J. L. Collyer, Cornell.
E. E. Hopkins, Syracuse.	C. C. Lund, Harvard.

The selection is based on the results of the season's races, on the work of the men as I saw them and, in some particulars, on the opinions of the coaches.

There were many exceptionally good men who came to the starting lines and thus the problem of choosing the best octet has been a difficult one and there are several who were in the various boats who surely would be entitled to a seat if the eight could only be stretched a bit.

NAMES EIGHT BEST MEN.

No attempt has been made to place the men in any positions in the boat—simply the supposedly eight best men being named.

Syracuse is given five places because she easily proved that she had the best crew in the country.

Whiteside stroked the Orange crew to victory at Poughkeepsie with great cleverness and with rare good judgment. After getting ahead of Cornell, which finished second, he was content to keep only a length in front, saving his men until the final spurt, when Syracuse sprinted out further very quickly. Whiteside is twenty-two years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 172 pounds.

Williams rowed at No. 7, and backed up stroke man to perfection, the two moving together in perfect unison. He is twenty-two years of age, 6 feet 1 inch in height and tips the scales at 165 pounds.

Worden, the young giant, did remarkably good work at No. 6. Although the youngest man on the crew, he is the biggest, measuring 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 180 pounds. He is nineteen years old.

HOPKINS POLISHED OARSMAN.

Hopkins not only rowed with great power, but with much smoothness and polish. His statistics are: Age, 21; height, 6 feet 1 inch, and weight, 164 pounds.

Osman, a veteran from last year's varsity boat, which he stroked, rowed this season at No. 4. He has had much experience and is a powerful oar. His age is 23, height, 6 feet 2 inches, and weight, 179 pounds.

Whiteside, Williams, Worden and Hopkins were in the same respective positions on last season's phenomenal Syracuse freshman crew that won so easily. Incidentally, half of the Syracuse eight rowed with the Duluth Boat Club before going to college. Only one of the men graduated this year and thus the crew practically will be intact next season.

Cochran, Collyer and Lund were the stroke men, respectively, of the Princeton, Cornell and Harvard varsity crews. Each combines brains, judgment, sand, calmness and remarkably good oarsmanship.

COCHRAN EXPERT AT PACE.

The first named paced the Tigers to a beautiful finish when they just beat out the Cambridge men on Carnegie Lake. Also, he pushed his men over the line first in the Childs Cup race in the American Henley, at Philadelphia, beating the Naval Academy, Columbia and Pennsylvania handily. Captain Cochran is twenty-three years old, 6 feet 1½ inches tall and weighs 160 pounds.

Captain Collyer is one of the best stroke men ever developed at Cornell. Last year he set the beating of the stroke which landed the Ithacans in first place at Poughkeepsie, and this season was in the stern seat of the boat which made the race with Syracuse. Collyer has been selected to aid Courtney and Hoyle with the coaching next year. He is twenty-two years old, stands 5 feet 11½ inches and weighs 160 pounds.

Lund stroked the Harvard second crew when it won the race for the Grand Challenge Cup at the last English Henley that was rowed. He set the pace that won from Cornell at Cambridge this Spring, and he made a fitting end to his university rowing career last Friday when, with his stroking, Harvard ran away from Yale so easily. He is twenty-one years of age, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 171 pounds.

COSTS THEM $5 FOR $1.25 LEAGUE BALL

New York, June 27.—Three of yesterday's Polo Grounds fans landed in Night Court last night charged with disorderly conduct as the direct result of foul balls coming their way. Polo Grounds special cops told Magistrate McQuade that the three had kicked up various kinds of fusses when asked to give up the batted balls. The magistrate imposed a fine of $5 upon each of the fans—John G. Ehrman of No. 930 East 180th street, Dave Lermer of No. 123 Wadsworth avenue, The Bronx, and Edward Steinfield of No. 170 West 174th street. Balls used in professional ball parks, said the magistrate, belong to a corporation and the fan who does not give them up is "guilty of petty larceny—and it must be stopped."

Dillon Aims To Win Big Bout by Knockout

By FRANK G. MENKE, Sporting Editor of the International News Service.

New York, June 27.—Jack Dillon never was more confident of anything in his life than he is today that he will beat Frank Moran when they meet Thursday night in their ten-round battle.

"I'll win sure," Dillon said today. "I am going after Moran from the tap of the gong and I won't quit trying for a K. O. wallop until the battle is over.

"To win the popular decision won't satisfy me. I want to win with a sleep punch, and that shall be my whole aim during Thursday night's fighting."

Dillon completes his training tomorrow. He is down around 165 pounds and will go into the ring in the neighborhood of 168.

"I've never been in finer shape in my life than I am right now," declared the "Giant Killer." "This is the big fight of my career. It's a fight where my supporters will back me heavily, so that when the gong bangs Thursday night I will be ready to fight the battle of my career."

"Mitch" Wanted Again — Crimson Seek Coach

The success of Fred Mitchell in his first-year as baseball coach at Harvard has made him a great favorite across the Charles, and while the contract of the former Brave does not expire until this Winter the Harvard authorities are already figuring on having "Mitch" back on Soldiers Field next Spring.

While no official meeting of the advisory baseball committee will probably held until college reopens, the plan to have Mitchell sign a new contract for three years of service, will probably be placed before the members at their first meeting of the college year.

For years past the bugaboo of all Harvard nines has been the last of first class pitchers. When a good twirler did show up, he generally lacked one or two essentials necessary for a first class slagman. Sam Felton, one of Harvard's crack throwers, was woefully wild, and could never be depended upon to go through a crucial game without showing signs of wildness. Eddie Mahan, before Mitchell took him in hand, was a mighty fine pitcher, but Eddie had his erratic side also. Mahan this year mastered the art of control and was easily one of the best college moundman in the country.

When Mahan drew down a sore arm during the Tufts game, he weathered that contest, but was unable to work during the series with Yale. Whitney came to the fore, however, and won the first contest against the Blue at New Haven. Charley Harrison, practically unknown as far as pitching experience went, got the call for the second game and held the Elis to five hits at Cambridge, winning his game 4 to 1. Garritt was another Harvard pitcher who showed great improvement under Mitchell.

Outside of long Dick Harte, no good catchers were discovered this Spring. Stephens, who caught for the freshmen last year, will likely be Harte's understudy next season, while Fuller and Bond of the 1919 team will come up for the varsity.

Vera Is Found by Rex as Professor Hazen Tells Her of His Love

SYNOPSIS.

Vera Sheldon, sixteen, has learned to dislike her father because of his harshness. Her brothers, too, dislike him. Vera adores her brother Rex and deplores the fact that both are prevented from taking part in their school activities. Finally Professor Hazen, a new young teacher from Princeton, openly admits his admiration for Vera and comes to see her.

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1916, International News Service

After a little while he took my hand. His fingers closed over it firmly. I noticed how strong they were and wondered if that was the way Norton Gregory's hand felt as it lay against Corinne's white forearm.

Soon it got to be the established practice for De Witt to walk home with me and sit with me on the vine hung piazza until 6 o'clock. We had supper at six thirty. Father always came home just in time for that and De Witt was always gone before Father got there. It was exciting having him "De Witt" on the piazza and "Professor Hazen" in school.

One day in June he told me that he loved me, that he would wait two years for me to grow up and then we would be married. I didn't want to marry anybody. Home life was not a thing for which I had any keen admiration. But suddenly I found myself swept into a man's arms and felt his lips on mine.

For a second I struggled, and then I resigned myself to the joy of being loved. At last some one besides Rex cared for me, I thought—and never dreamed how strange that thought was under the circumstances.

Then one of the windows back of us was thrown up. Rex burst out, caught me from De Witt's arms into his own and gasped, "Leave this to me. Father's coming up the path."

It probably never occurred to Rex that the history professor wanted to marry me. By the time he was nineteen handsome, magnetic Rex had discovered that feminine emotions were easily stirred. Undoubtedly he gave father credit for being man of the world enough to know that, too. And he remembered long years of training in the bitter knowledge of how easily father was moved to wrath.

Rex had seen father turning in at our gate and had rushed to warn me. Then as he came down the stairway he had seen De Witt seize me in his arms. He had thought quickly, desperately, actuated by his desire to save me from father's dreaded fury. He and the professor were about the same height, so Rex caught me in his embrace and planned the trick with which to save me.

Tyrants make their subjects cowards. Cowards are liars. Rex and I were thoroughly frightened. And so I let him meet father with the weapon of subterfuge.

I learned all too easily to prevaricate. Rex had discovered that juggling the truth helped you out of scrapes. He wanted to protect me. So he held his pose of brotherly devotion until father had come onto the piazza. Then he rushed over to greet him. "Father, you'll be delighted, I know. Professor Hazen has just come to tell Vera that she's won the history prize. Pretty good for little sister, isn't it?"

PRAISE FROM FATHER

Father turned to me with real delight. "Well, I've raised up a girl who isn't a gad-about or a flirt. Take your double eagle, Vera, and buy yourself anything you want. I'll put as much more in the bank for you."

De Witt bowed and said he had known we'd be delighted. He accepted father's invitation to supper. I sat all through our evening meal of cold meats and cheese and radishes and stewed fruit with burning cheeks and thumping heart. I couldn't meet father's eyes or De Witt's. I was even afraid of mother.

I didn't sleep all that night. I kept remembering my first kiss. Rex knocked at my door about midnight, but I told him to go away and let me be. I had never been cross to Rex before. He went away laughing indulgently. I think he half understood.

The next day De Witt announced to the class that Miss Vera Sheldon had won the Junior History Prize, and that she and three other junior prize winners would sit on the stage of the Masonic Temple with the graduating class on commencement day. He asked me to stay after school and discuss a topic for the essay I must read.

There was a little applause from my classmates—but it was perfunctory and not enthusiastic. Some of them even muttered that Myra Barnes did just as good work as Vera Sheldon, but that Vera was a sly boots and teacher's pet, and that old man Sheldon had jollied the "Prof." along all right.

DE WITT EXPLAINS

"Well, Vera," said Professor Hazen when I came up to his desk to talk it over after school, "you and Myra Barnes were just about a tie for that prize. But there was nothing to do but fall in with that scheme of Rex's yesterday. He's a quick-witted boy. I don't suppose your father is quite ready to hand you over to a lover yet. And you can't marry without his consent for over a year. So we'd better be careful."

Some little instinct of honesty revolted. But if Rex, my adored brother, had thought this the best way out, and if De Witt, college graduate, professor and my avowed fiance, thought so too, it didn't seem wise for me to trouble them with my scruples.

I was so accustomed to masculine dominance that I hardly permitted myself to think of questioning it.

In all the years when I had feared my father so gravely, it had never before occurred to me to lie out of any scrape in which I found myself. I had trembled in the dark cellarway up to the time I was thirteen. And I had gone to bed without my supper or been deprived of a new dress I wanted as a penalty when I grew older.

I had even endured a few whippings with a feeling of shame at my outraged dignity which added to the pain. But I had never lied out of any scrape. Now I saw how easy it was to get around father with an untruth.

I was permitted to keep my twenty-dollar gold piece for spending money; father added twenty to my bank account and bought me a beautiful new white crepe de chine dress for the Commencement exercises and French heeled slippers such as I had long coveted. The rewards of evil seemed very pleasant. Even Len boasted "Vera" is a "bright kid."

A SMALL TRIUMPH

The commencement excercises were quite a little triumph for me. I was applauded energetically, and father fairly beamed on me as he clapped. De Witt sent me some wonderful red roses and Rex gave me a bouquet of sweet peas. I felt altogether popular and triumphant until the excercises were concluded and we had gathered in one of the rooms back of the stage to talk it all over.

Myra Barnes came up to me and spoke with suspicious sweetness. "That was a lovely essay Vera. Who helped you with it, Professor Hazen or Len?"

For a moment I was hurt and angry and then a little feeling of amusement at my own joke bubbled up in my heart and I replied: "It was Rex."

Myra fell back on another line of attack. "Then I suppose Rex is bringing you to the Senior Dance tonight, too."

That hurt. The sarcasm of it brought a titter from all the other boys and girls. They knew that father did not permit us to go to dances.

My cousin Corinne, who was Myra's chum, and who resented the fact that I had won the history prize, broke in in a superior tone. "Oh, if Rex went he'd take that Stacey girl from down the village. Maybe he'll sneak her in after uncle's in bed. But Vee has had enough honors for one day."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Reason Enough

"I've called, Mrs. Jones, to learn why Tommy has not attended his class lately," began the sweet young Sunday-school teacher, a frown on her pretty face.

"Well, Miss Goodleigh," answered Mrs. Jones, "the reason why I've kept Tommy away from Sunday-school is because the knowledge he received there was making him a wicked boy."

"A wicked boy!" gasped the amazed teacher. "Really, Mrs. Jones, I cannot imagine to what you refer."

"You see, it's this way, Miss Goodleigh," explained Mrs. Jones, determinedly. "The last time Tommy went to Sunday school you taught him that people are made of dust. Well, when he came home he nearly frightened me to death by trying to draw his little baby sister into the vacuum-cleaner!"

Proper Thing Now Is to Peel Off Soiled Skin

Those who abhor sticky, greasy, shiny, streaked complexions should religiously avoid creams, powders and rouges during the heated days. There's no need for them, anyway, since the virtues of mercolized wax have become known. No amount of perspiration will produce any evidence that you've been using the wax. As it is applied at bedtime and washed off in the morning, the complexion never looks like a make-up. Mercolized wax gradually takes off a bad complexion, instead of adding anything to make it worse. It has none of the disadvantages of cosmetics and accomplishes much more in keeping the complexion beautifully white, satiny and youthful. Just get an ounce of it at your druggist's and see what a few days' treatment will do. Use like cold cream.

Another effective warm weather treatment—heat tending to cause wrinkles and flabbiness—is a skin-tightener made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. Its use (as a face bath) leaves no trace.—Advertisement.

A New, Harmless Way to Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face. With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the not wanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be employed to get the genuine delatone.—Advertisement

"Harmony"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service

IN the Park I saw them, these two, who would have joyed the soul of "Hermoine" and her "little circle of serious thinkers" because of their ideas of harmony! Not with the stars that stud the sky and shake there in the wind, if you please, but with the cloth of their gowns and the cut of them, and the dogs at her heels. Slimsy Sue, in Quaker-gray, was planned on long, high lines. Long feet, long face, long hands, long neck, and the long dear droop at the shoulders from years of trying to get down in chumship with the rest of humanity! Beside her walked in gray longness a hound—the highest, longest dog.

And the two strode in lengthy dignity down a path to meet there another picture all in lines harmonious—not this time a panel, but a circular affair! A wee wide girl with stubby burro-like feet, a short hat that sat atop of her short little face, a short jacket that flew out recklessly to the east and west and cared nothing for the schemes of "up-and-down," a short skirt that stood out like a Maharajah's sunshade from her short limbs. Beside her nipped a chow-dog, who looked like a toy Alaskan bear telescoped. He, too, cared nothing for the cult of length. He gloried in chunkiness and knew that he harmonized with the lady who trotted behind him.

"My word!" breathed an aghast Englishman when he came in sight of the foursome, "that's really amazin', you know!"

Do We Respect Our Elders?

Does Youth Forget That It, Too, Shall Be Age Some Day.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

We about to die salute you kindly—
We, the very old, hail you, the young;
Though the shows of earth we see but blindly,
And a leaden weight is on our tongue.
• • • • • • •
We have lived and loved, as you are doing;
We are glad to see you run the race;
Half you seem ourselves—your work, your wooing,
Your high stakes of glory or disgrace.

Hail! Farewell! Nor blame us if a sadness
Clutches at our throat, the while we gaze
Brokenly, thro' tears, upon that gladness
Once was ours in exquisite old days.

—RICHARD BURTON.

Will all my boys and girls, all my young men and women, all who have ever listened to any word I had to say to them, read and ponder over that exquisite little verse of Richard Burton's.

Read it once—and yet again. It states with a rare beauty of diction how a true poet feels the case of Old Age.

There is only a word for me to add in interpretation—in explanation of the poem's relation to our life as it is.

The immortality of which we are sure is the perpetuation of life as it is handed down from parents to children. In the child the miracle of life is renewed. In the child the parent lives over again its youth. And some day—in the cycle that is life—the child shall again relive its youth in its children.

Old Age is the portion of all of us—unless Death claim us in youth. Old Age is the beautiful decline of life—the peaceful time of meditation and looking forward to the Great Release.

Does any of us sneer at the rose when its petals are ready to fall? Dare any of us fail in the reverence we have been bidden in the great commandment to pay our parents?

The heart of Age knows joy as it believes in the experience of Youth—its own May-time. Little ghosts of bygone delights—and bygone pain—come again to visit the mind of Age as it renews its Youth in its sympathy with the generations that have come to be young when its heyday is over.

Age dreams its way back to Youth as it watches Youth.

Will Youth wake it rudely? Will Youth fail of respect? Will Youth sneer at precious memories? Does Youth dare?

Youth, too, shall be Age some day. Does it forget that?

The memories of Youth will be harsh and unlovely if they include memories of unkindness to the blessed dead, who wanted to give love and help and comfort—and who were sneered at as relics of a bygone age.

Age loves Youth. Will Youth fail of courtesy to the failing guest in the house of life?

His Reason

In the middle of a small ploughed field a motorcar lay helplessly on its side. Evidently it had skidded off the road and through the hedge. The motorist stood looking at it disconsolately.

"Halloa!" called out a genial passer-by. "Had an accident?"

The motorist bit back the angry retort which rose to his lips, and then replied coldly:

"Not at all, sir. I've just bought a new car, so I brought this old one out into the field to bury it. Got a pickaxe and a shovel in your pocket you could lend me? I don't seem able to make much of a hole with a spanner."

Must Wedding Rings Go?

An Attempt to Abolish Them Starts in England

In England there has been a move started to abolish wedding rings. While this suggestion is due to a desire to save all the gold possible for practical uses, yet many hold it is high time to do away with a symbol of woman's servitude to man.

This move is under way because it was not long ago that an agitation was started to compel married men to wear wedding rings, so that they could not deceive young girls into thinking they were free.

This is not the first time that an attempt has been made to do away with wedding rings, for in the time of the Commonwealth the Puritans seriously contemplated their abolition, because the custom was of heathen origin.

The plain golden wedding ring is comparatively modern. In the early sixteenth century rings of all sorts and designs were used, invariably inscribed with mottoes. It is recorded as something unusual that Queen Victoria's wedding ring was a plain band of gold.

Some assert that we owe the origin of the ring as a wedding pledge to the Romans, but many believe that it goes back as far as the Egyptians, Babylonians and Hebrews. One of the wedding rings picked up in the ruins of Pompeii represents a man and woman joining hands.

Long ago in the English marriage ritual the ring was first placed by the husband on the top of the thumb of the left hand, as he said, "In the name of the Father," then placing it on the first finger "In the name of the Son," next on the middle finger, adding "And of the Holy Ghost," finally placing it upon the fourth finger with the word "Amen."

In Persia the ring is amongst the wedding presents given by the bridegroom to his bride, while in Spain, if a man gives a girl over twelve years of age a ring, that constitutes a betrothal to which he can be held.

Most people will be surprised to learn that the Bible contains no religious command to wear a wedding ring—does not mention rings in connection with marriage. With the Jews the using of wedding rings has not so very long been customary. The Talmud, their sacred guidebook, has no mention of wedding rings, and anything could be used provided it was the property of the bridegroom and was of the value of the small coin, the perutah.

The more recent theory concerning the plain gold wedding ring is that the ring is of pure gold, just as the love of the united pair should be pure, and that a circle is endless, as should be the marital affection. It would certainly be wrong, say many, to abolish a custom which has existed so long and holds such beautiful sentiments.

What They Were

A motor car was held up in a busy street by a wagon drawn by two horses. The driver seemed in no hurry to get out of the way, and at length one of the occupants of the motor car exclaimed, sarcastically:

"Here, I say, my man! What are these things you are driving? What are they for, I should like to know?"

"These 'ere, guv'nor?" answered the carter, flicking the horses with his whip. "Oh, these is wot is commonly called 'orses, an' they're sometimes used fer to take motorists to the 'orspital."

The Manicure Lady

She Gives the Head Barber Some Good Advice on Saving Money

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"Gee, George," said the manicure Lady, "I never knew how tender a lady could love a gent till I began reading this here novel, 'Vivian's Husband.' It's awful nice the way she swears by him."

"Wives is that way in novels mostly," said the doubting Head Barber. "My missus wouldn't vote for me if she had a vote and I was running for President."

"I don't like that cynical way in which you have been talking lately, George," said the Manicure Lady. "You used to be always there with a kind remark about the fair sex, and lately you're getting to be a regular old Adam Sourdough. There is a lot of kind and loving wives in this world."

"That don't help me none," said the Head Barber. "I got a fine scolding before I left home this morning. I ain't got over feeling cheap yet."

"I bet it was your own fault," said the Manicure Lady. "All you gotta do, George, is to take home some flowers to her tonight. I seen that gent that just went out give you a dollar tip, and if you'll take another tip from me, spend that dollar for a bunch of flowers."

"Do you think that would work?" asked the Head Barber. "Jack O'Brien took home some flowers the other night and his wife hit him on the bald head with them, and they had thorns on the stems."

"That wouldn't happen again in a thousand years," the Manicure Lady assured him. "Us girls is all heart when we see flowers brought to us by them we love. Try it."

"I guess I will," said the Head Barber. "I wouldn't never have any trouble at home if I didn't bet money on the horses. I have always said if I made a killing at the track I would buy a home in the country. But the killing ain't came yet."

"And it won't never come," declared the Manicure Lady. "You will keep on throwing good money after bad, and your horses will keep losing. Don't be a simp all your life, George. Stop buying rings for them pool room sharks. They never done nothing for you."

"I guess I'm through," said the Head Barber. "I guess you're right. Never again for me."

"Now that's the way to talk," said the Manicure Lady. "In two years from now you will come to me, if I ain't married and gone away from here in the meantime, and you will tell me that this here tip I have gave you today was the best advice you ever got."

"Maybe you're right," said the Head Barber. "I am just going to try your system for a while. It will be like quitting smoking, though. It will be tough."

"George," said the Manicure Lady, "this is a tough world. It's tough all the way. It's tough to babies and to grown-ups. You gotta be tough to stay in it. But there is a lot of good in the old world after all, if you know how to dig for it. But you gotta dig, you just gotta. There comes a regular customer for me, so I gotta get on the job."

Watchful Waiting

Tommy had a cold in his head, which confined him to the house, so he was allowed to invite his young friend, Jack, to tea. Afterwards the two small boys commenced playing hide-and-seek, and Tommy rushed into the dining-room and asked his father to conceal him. This father did, behind a big arm chair. Presently in come Jack, and, instead of beginning his search, calmly threw himself down on the rug before the fire.

"Come, Jack," said Tommy's father, "aren't you going to look?"

"No fear!" was the small boy's calm retort, "I'm waiting till he sniffs!"

ADMINISTRATION OUT TO PASS PRESS GAG

By International News Service.

Washington, June 27.—The Wilson administration has decided to put through Section 7, the "press gag" clause of the pending Postoffice Appropriation Bill at all costs.

Investigation today confirmed this conjecture and disclosed the fact that enactment into law of Section 7 is only the beginning of a general campaign against publishers of the United States to force a higher postage rate for magazines and newspapers.

Here is an outline of the plans of President Wilson and Postmaster-General Burleson:

LOBBY FOR MEASURE.

1—To force through the Senate over the protests of almost every publishing house in the United States Section 7 of the Postoffice Appropriation Bill, conferring arbitrary power upon Mr. Burleson in the matter of routing magazines and newspapers by mail or freight.

2—To hold this power over the heads of publishers in a resurrection of the campaign for higher rates for magazines that failed in 1911 and forerun the defeat of the Taft administration.

3—To force acceptance of this higher rate on periodicals by publishers if possible without reference to a fair committee of investigation in defiance of popular demand for the printed matter.

4—To accomplish the purposes of the Administration, Postmaster-General Burleson has appointed a postoffice official to the task of lobbying in the Senate for passage of Section 7 and to defeat the Ashurst motion to strike it from the bill. This official is paid by the government and is working against the interests of the public upon time paid for by the government.

UNDERWOOD IS FIGHT.

Back of this scheme is a coterie of Southern Senators, headed by Senator Bankhead, chairman of the Senate Postoffice Committee; Senator Hardwick of Georgia, Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia and Senator Underwood of Alabama.

Senator Underwood said today:

The publishers of the United States are getting a subsidy now and it is time something was done to wring from them an agreement so that they will consent to a raise in the postal rates on second class matter.

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia was even more explicit. He said:

It appears to me that it is time for these large magazines, packed from cover to cover with highly paid advertising—who always are talking about the uplift and parading their patriotism — to come to the government and offer to pay a higher price for transportation of their output.

The postal bill ought to be amended either to extend the authority for freighting magazines or increase the price of their delivery.

CURTIS ASKS PROBE.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona, who is leading a fight to have Section 7 stricken from the Postoffice Appropriation Bill, will object to such a procedure without the most thorough investigation. He said today:

I have received many communications from influential publishers throughout the country who have been excluded from a fair hearing on the "blue tag" phase of the pending postoffice bill.

Their requests are for the defeat of the objectionable clause, pending an investigation fair to the public, themselves and the government. Tens of millions of dollars of investments are represented by the publishers making these pleas. They feel that they have been unfairly dealt with by Congress. They have had no opportunity to present their side of the case.

If the Administration is to increase rates on magazines or put them under one-man power, in the matter of excluding or including their products in the regular mails, such steps must be taken only after a fair and equitable hearing.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis of the Curtis Publishing Company, who is president of the Periodical Publishers' association, representing all the large publishing houses in the United States, has sent a telegram on behalf of the association asking for delay and investigation.

Motor Notes.

By J. C. KERRISON.

The arrival of the new low-priced, powerful Overland car, known as the 90 Series 75 B, at the salesroom of the Connell & McKone Company at Massachusetts avenue, yesterday, attracted an exceptionally large amount of attention. Throughout the day the salesroom was filled with prospects and it was impossible for the company to keep abreast of the demand for demonstrations. The new model has certainly made a hit.

Plans for what will be the greatest non-stop run ever staged have been consummated by the Saxon Motor Car Corporation and its dealer organizations. Although from time to time non-stop runs have been held by several companies, there has never been one which will approach the run 2,000 Saxon dealers will promote July 1.

The Saxon Motor Car Corporation has had a large silver loving cup of striking beauty designed to present to the dealer who achieves the best mileage record, per gallon of gasoline.

Each dealer will run 300 miles without stopping his motor. In each case a newspaper man has been appointed to act as official observer.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in New York at noon. After overnight selling orders were disposed of there was demand for stocks and a general advance followed. Early weakness was said to reflect the country's disappointment on learning through delay in getting troops to the border how unprepared the United States is for war or defense.

Gains at 12 o'clock included United Fruit 1, American Smelting 1¼, U. S. Smelting 1⅝, U. S. Steel ⅞, Anaconda 2¼, Chino ⅜, Kennecott ⅝, Inspiration ⅝, Utah Copper ⅞, Marine preferred ⅝, Central Leather 1¼, Goodrich 1, Corn Products 1, American Zinc ⅝, Butte & Superior 1¼, Car & Foundry 1, American Loco 1⅛, Baldwin 1⅞, Crucible 3¼, Distillers 1, Industrial Alcohol 2½, Mexican Petroleum 1¼, Maxwell ⅛, Studebaker 1⅝, Chandler ⅞, Willys-Overland 1½, Southern Pacific ½, Reading 1½, Lehigh Valley ⅝, New Haven ⅜, N. Y. Central ⅝, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅜, Northern Pacific 1, Baltimore & Ohio ½ and Union Pacific 1⅛.

Among declines were Westinghouse ⅛, American Sugar ¾ and Beet Sugar ⅛.

It is stated the Crucible Steel Company has received a $4,000,000 munitions order from the U. S. government.

Boston prices followed the New York lead upward. There was an advance here before the end of the first hour. Gains at noon included New Haven ⅜, United Fruit ¼, Butte & Superior ½, United Shoe ½, U. S. Smelting ⅞, Gulf common ⅝, Copper Range ½, North Butte ½ and Osceola ⅜.

Among declines were Isle Royale ½, Lake ½, Old Dominion 1 and St. Mary 1.

Liquidation was resumed when the New York market opened, there being considerable selling through commission houses. Room traders were bearish and deemed the market situation bad. Early gains were few and fractional. Among issues to decline a point or more on first sales were U. S. Smelting, United Fruit, American Beet Sugar, American Can and Chandler. Trading was of moderate volume. At the end of half an hour the market was stronger. Reading, Baldwin, Marine preferred, American Can, Corn Products, U. S. Steel, Union Pacific and Industrial Alcohol were among issues to advance the most. Covering of shorts helped. It is said that the short interest has become very large.

Trading was quiet and narrow in Boston at the start, U. S. Smelting and Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies common being the most active stocks. They were lower. U. S. Smelting was particularly weak. American Zinc soon showed a point loss. A number of coppers declined. Several sold unchanged.

On the London metals exchange spot copper and electrolytic were unchanged and futures £1 lower. Tin quotations were £1 15s. lower. Spot lead was unchanged, futures up 2s. 6d. Spelter quotations were unchanged.

Central Leather directors declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. on common stock, besides the regular quarterly dividend.

North Butte directors declared a quarterly dividend of seventy-five cents a share. The previous dividend was fifty cents.

A Painful Spectacle of Unpreparedness

THE militia was ordered to mobilize nine days ago.

It is still, for the most part, marking time in the State camps or starting for the border at peace strength and only partly equipped.

The men were ready enough. They lacked neither spirit nor willingness.

The one thing they lacked, and still lack, was the EQUIPMENT which the War Department is bound to supply.

You will understand that a regiment of the militia maintains equipment only for its members on a peace footing. When a regiment is called to the colors it must be recruited up to full numbers, and the duty of the War Department is to have ready, for instant use, the uniforms, arms, small ammunition, blankets, underwear, commissary supplies, horses and other soldierly necessities to fill out the regiment's peace equipment.

And this is exactly what the War Department was NOT ready to do, and is not yet ready to do.

Had the news come ten days ago that Japan had declared war upon us and started transports loaded with 300,000 trained and fully equipped soldiers on their way to the Pacific Coast, we should have had no navy to meet them, and JAPANESE TROOPS WOULD BE DISEMBARKING ON AMERICAN SOIL WHILE OUR MILITIA WERE WAITING IN THEIR ARMORIES AND CAMPS FOR UNIFORMS AND GUNS.

We cannot understand how the Administration could permit such conditions to exist during all these months just past.

There has been no day in three years when we might not have been called upon to face war with Mexico or with some European power or with Japan.

And, with this eventuality right at the door, the Administration takes no step even to prepare to mobilize the militia, ready for the field.

It seems to us that this is worse than carelessness. It is downright stupidity, and fearfully DANGEROUS stupidity.

There is not a well-informed man in the country who did not know that war with Mexico was inevitable—and that war with Japan at some later date is equally inevitable. Japan, like Mexico, will some day take advantage of an occasion TO FORCE WAR UPON US.

And we can imagine no invitation to Japan to begin which can equal the sorry and humiliating spectacle of unpreparedness, even for this fourth-rate war with Mexico, which our government at Washington and its War Department are now offering to the contemptuous laughter of the general staffs of the great powers.

Let us take this lesson to heart at once. Because, citizens, if we do not put ourselves in a thousand times better state of military preparation than our government has us in now, Japan will not only attack us with hope of victory, but with certainty of victory.

Will we never wake up from this fool's dream of security until the land is ablaze with our burning cities and soaked red with the blood of our untrained and unequipped and practically unarmed militia?

It does seem at times as if our native good sense had deserted us, to return only after frightful war has swept the land with the whirlwinds of destruction and the lightnings and the tempests of defeat and disaster.

We have faith to believe that that very self-same Providence which guided our fathers through so many dark and terrible days has brought to us this soldiers' task in Mexico, that thereby we may, in spite of our ourselves, as it were, become prepared to defend our land and our institutions and our civilization against the tremendous assault which the lords of Asia meditate making upon them.

If this lesson is lost upon us, if we do not now prepare upon a sufficient scale the military and naval means of defence, we are self-doomed to frightful defeat, and we shall sustain that defeat without the sympathy of any other people on earth.

For we shall have made with our own hands the bed of shame upon which we must, in that case, lie beaten and humiliated.

THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND HIM

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

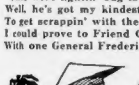

Expert Testimony

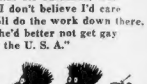

THERE'E a Spanish gent named Weyler, settin' round in ole Madrid,
Sort o' smilin' as he fingers with the plumage on his lid.
An' he scatters 'round "Carramba!" as he skims the papers o'er,
An' observes where one Carranza has allowed he'll go to war.
An' he says, does Mr. Weyler, as he whiffs his cigarette,
"I could tell this here Carranza just ezzackly what he'll get.
He can take it from Doc Weyler that he long will rue the day
That he meets with General Funston of the U. S. A."

IN a bungalow of nipa, somewhere in the Philippines,
Sits a chap named Aguinaldo, stokin' up on Spanish beans,
An' he murmurs sympathetic, while he runs the papers through,
"This here fightin' bug is spreadin'; it has bit Carranza, too.
Well, he's got my kindest wishes; but I don't believe I'd care
To get scrappin' with the feller that will do the work down there.
I could prove to Friend Carranza that he'd better not get gay
With one General Frederick Funston of the U. S. A."

It All Depends

When Frank Hitchcock went to Chicago to work for Hughes he was a scheming political adventurer, trying to repair his broken fortunes by dragging the Supreme Bench in the mire of politics. As soon as Hughes was nominated Hitchcock became a far-sighted statesman, securing by patriotic effort the most eminently fitted candidate to lead the Republican cause to an assured victory.

The Height of Liberality

The politicians of the country, in platform expressed, agree that women ought to have the vote, and can have it, if they can get it without bothering either the Republican or Democratic party to get it for them.

Cause and Effect

Bill Bryan told the Democrats,
That we must fight no more,
And on the morning after that
The country went to war!

The Enthusiasm of the Cub

Irv Cobb was not always a cold, passionate chronicler of contemporary history. "The first time I ever saw Cobb," said Ollie James, at St. Louis, "was at the Kentucky convention that nominated Goebel. There was a demonstration for Goebell, and Cobb, who was reporting the convention for an evening paper, was writing and hissing at the same time."

Too Late!

If only the President had been half so keen about preparedness in planning for the Mexican campaign as he was in planning for the Democratic convention.

A Bargain

If a good woman's price is above rubies, why isn't a good husband worth $5,000,000?

Do We Hear Cries of "Yes! Yes!"?

Now let us emulate the fine example of Russia and put the whole country on the water wagon!

"We Have With Us This Morning"

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

WHEN you sit down to your breakfast table one of these warm Summer mornings—if they ever come—you will find an uninvited guest. His name is Musca Domestica, Dutch uncle, or, rather, Spanish stepfather, to the mosquito ("little fly"), and though he has no sting, he can raise a blister on your angelic disposition and a bumo on your Christian fortitude as if he were the original Spanish Fly itself. Don't wait to be introduced to him, or even to address him by his common name, "Shoo Fly," for if you do, he will be all over the butter and into your coffee, but shoot him on the spot as though he had hauled down the American flag!

Why should we treat a friendly visitor, who has simply invited himself to breakfast, in such an inhospitable, not to say ferocious fashion?

First, because he is himself like Artemus Ward's Injuns, "pizen wherever found."

Second, and even more importantly, because he is the forerunner, the potential ancestor, of all the swarming millions that will buzz and crawl and blacken our food all through the Summer's heat.

It does seem at first sight rather cruel to advocate killing at sight, every chance we get, a feeble, harmless-looking little insect, buzzing happily from plate to plate and from nose to nose. Especially as it was a part of the sentimental training of the young in kindness to animals to be particularly merciful to flies, fishing them out of the milk jug, or the honey jar, and placing them on the sunny window-sills, where they could dry their wings and fly away rejoicing. We even used to be taught a tag of moral Mother Goose:

"'Tis God hath made the little fly,
And if you crush it, it will die."

But modern science has discovered the true nature of the fly—what a pestilent, little filth-carrying reptile he is, and entirely declines to recognize him as one of God's good creatures to whom it is our duty to be kind. It is much more inclined to agree with the Mohammedan proverb which declares that "Flies are the sweat of the devil." Furthermore, if God created the fly it is man that has made him dangerous and furnished him places to breed in, by his dirty and untidy habits. The fly is one of our domestic animals. We have created him as he is, and it is up to us to wipa him out. To paraphrase Kipling:

"He was not made with the mountains.
He is not one with the deep.
Man, not God, hath made him.
And men, not God, must aweep"— him off the earth.

From the point of view of cruity to animals, it is a positive kindness to kill the early fly, for by one swift, painless swat you prevent the myriad slaughter and agony of his hundreds and thousands of future descendants by hunger in fly traps, by agonizing thirst on sticky fly paper, by drowning, by poisoning, by burning. The best way to prevent flies in their dog-day swarms is to put a stop to them before they happen by killing the patriarchs of all their tribes in June.

The strong probability is that the scattering handful of flies which first put in an appearance in your dining room and kitchen, or on your back porch, are not strangers, or newcomers at all, but household pets, guests of the family who have spent the Winter under your hospitable roof. Insects have various ways of surviving the Winter and securing the continuation of their species. Most of them hibernate through the period of frost and cold in the form of eggs, or larvae, or chrysalises buried deep in the ground, but the fly, like the bumblebee, takes his chances on getting through the Winter in the adult or winged form.

School of Manners Badly Needed

Dorothy Dix Welcomes Establishment of Etiquette Department at New York University—American Child Too Often Lacking in Politeness and Little Graces of Human Intercourse.

By Dorothy Dix

IT is announced that the New York University is going to establish a school of manners, and that the degree of M. E.—Magister Elegantiarium—may be conferred on such students as perfect themselves in the etiquette of polite society.

This news sounds almost too good to be true. Let us hope, however, that such a course of study is really to be established in one of the country's great schools, and that it will be compulsory, for nothing is more sadly needed.

For whatever other charms and virtues the American youth may possess, good manners are seldom among them. As a child he is almost invariably a little savage. As a hobbledehoy he is generally a hoodlum, and as a grown man he is only too often an awkward blunderer, who is like a bull in the social china shop.

On every side we encounter multitudes of men who have intelligence, force, power, men who have achieved success in their own particular calling, but who are as ignorant as babes of any of the graces of human intercourse.

They cannot enter or leave a room without falling over their own feet. They do not know what to say when presented to a stranger, or how either to pay or receive a compliment.

At dinner parties you may see them hopelessly floundering around among the silverware. At restaurants you may observe them with their legs twined like snakes around their chair legs, grasping their forks as if they were about to harpoon an attacking whale, and, alas, you may even pass away an evening listening to them eat their soup.

Of course, we excuse such men by saying that they have been too busy with big affairs to give their attention to such small matters as the proper use of a fork or a spoon. We say that it's more important that a man's heart should be of gold than that he should wear the right sort of coat for the occasion, and we try to gloss over his boorishness by calling him a rough diamond.

All of which is sheer nonsense. Nobody will contend that a rough diamond is as valuable as one that is cut and polished, and the truth is that while a man may succeed without good manners, he would succeed better with them. To know how to do things, to possess what the French call savoir faire, is always a help, never a handicap in life.

People have always appreciated this fact so far as women were concerned. In all girls' schools special attention is paid to deportment, and girls are taught the niceties of etiquette that they perhaps do not have an opportunity to learn in their owa homes.

More than that, at home stress is laid on little girls behaving like ladies, and wherever you go the small daughter of the house will receive you charmingly, drop her little courtesy and endeavor to engage you in courteous conversation.

But apparently the mothers of the same families make no effort to instill politeness into their boys, and the lads will storm into the room with their caps on. They will never stop to speak to the visitors, and only grunt by way of reply when addressed.

And when these boys are sent off to school no effort seems to be made to supplement their lack of home training in manners. They are grounded in all the arts and sciences except the most important art and science of all, which is that of making oneself agreeable to one's fellow-creatures.

For, when all is said and done, good manners will carry one further than anything else in the world. They are a letter of credit that every one of us honors at sight. The clown may compel our grudging respect, but we present our hearts as a free gift to the courtier.

A young man may be of the most sterling worth, and yet wear a decollete collar that exposes his Adam's apple and a coat and trousers and waistcoat of different makes and colors so that he looks like an animated patchwork quilt, but if he and another youth who knew how to dress applied for the same job the good clothes would get it.

A man might be a genius and yet eat peas with his knife, but he would have a hard time getting close enough to those who might help him to get a chance to show what he could do.

A man may have almost superhuman ability in any line, but if he is rude and crude in his manners, if he does not know how to please, he lives and dies neglected.

On the other hand, the man who has what we call a charming personality, who is gracious in speech and polite in manners, finds a helping hand always at his elbow and a friendly shoulder ready to boost him up the ladder.

That is why it is so important to teach boys good manners and why the opening of such a department in a big university is epoch-making.

The Proposal

By William F. Kirk

ONE day we knew. The brook was blue
And white along the edges;
The blackbird's song soared brave and strong
Above the rusty hedges.
The pink arbutus trailed beneath
The leaves all dead and crumbling;
One drift of snow, the last to go,
Sent tiny rivers tumbling.

How well do I recall your eyes
So trustful and so tender!
Dear heart of mine, they seemed to shine
With most seraphic splendor.
Again I see your golden head,
Sweet maid with melting glance,
As, when I asked if you would wed,
You murmured "Not a chance!"
